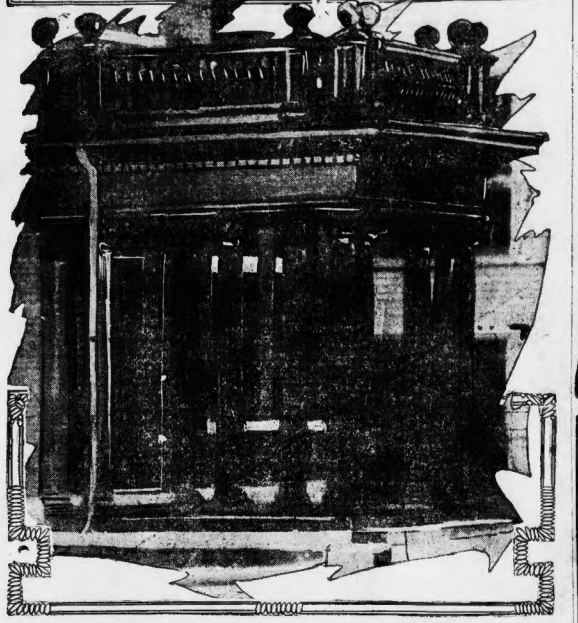
AIRSHIP IN FLIGHT WATCHED BY 40,000



ABOVE is a picture of the entrance to the great factory at Hopedale, Mass., of which Lieutenant-Governor Draper is one of the owners.

The Drapers rule the town of Hopedale with an autocratic power which would make the Czar of Russia green with envy.

No union man can live in the town.

No man who would not give up his union card to Lieutenant-Governor Draper after the lockout which occurred in the Draper factory last year was permitted to return to work.

The penalty for belonging to a union in Hopedale is the loss of the means of livelihood. Some men tried it last year. They were deprived of their work, and those who refused to sign an agreement to turn over their due books in the union were ordered out of the company's houses.

In other words, Czar Draper turned his subjects and their families out of doors for the crime of belonging to a union.

In the American town of Hopedale there are honest, hard-working citizens of the United States who dare not express aloud their political convictions or criticize the iron-handed men who are their masters.

'NOTHING TO FEAR,' SAYS BOY

ACCUSED OF KILLING HIS OWN FATHER

Edgar Meikle Locked in Jail Calmly Protests His Innocence.

In his cell in the Salem Jail Edward Weston Meikle, the fifteen-year-old boy who is charged with having shot and killed his father, Charles Meikle, at their home in Lynn, to-day declared his innocence to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN, with whom the youthful prisoner talked.

Talking through the lattice of iron bars, young Meikle reiterated the story that he had previously told of the shooting. He said that the charge against him had been trumped up by the police because he is only a boy.

"I have not the slightest doubt but that I will be freed," said young Meikle, with much feeling in his voice.

Boy's Story of Tragedy.

The reporter told the prisoner that he wanted the true story of the death of his father. The boy looked out through the iron bars and talked without agitation. There was no bravado, however, in his manner.

"I can't talk about my case at all," said the boy. "My lawyer told me that I must not do so. But I will say this:

"I have not the slightest doubt but that I will be freed. I suppose the police thought that because I was a boy without influence that it would be easy to get a conviction on a trumped-up charge. I am innocent, that's all I've got to say."

STANDS BY STATEMENT.

"You remember that you made a statement to the AMERICAN last Fall, don't you, Edgar?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, sir, I do."

"And was that true?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you don't want to say anything now to change that, do you?"

"No, sir."

"And you still maintain that the death of your father occurred as you then told it?"

"I did not kill my father. My father shot himself, and it is not right for the officers to say that I had anything to do with it.

"I was with my father at the time, and I saw everything. My father and I lived at No. 23 Congress street. Father worked in the General Electric works. He sent me to the Lewis Grammar School.

"I didn't like to go to school very well and I told my father so. But he always insisted that I must go as he wanted me to learn everything I could. The day before he shot himself I had not been at school. He hadn't been acting just right, but he hadn't done anything to me or to himself.

GRAND JURY SUMMONS THE PRESIDENT'S SON

SHAUN KELLEY, ROOSEVELT'S CHUM, PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO ASSAULT CHARGE.

Shaun Kelly, the chum of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who to-day pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault and battery on Patrolman Fraher of the Lagrange street station and had his case continued for a week, was closeted with District Attorney Moran for some time after he left the courtroom. With him were his counsel, Francis R. Bangs and John F. Perkins.

When Kelly and the attorneys reached the District Attorney's office Mr. Moran was not there. The trio entered the private office to wait. They left the courthouse after talking with Moran at 11:25 o'clock.

Mr. Bangs asked Mr. Moran to discontinue the grand jury investigation and not to call young Roosevelt and the other witnesses before that body to-morrow.

Mr. Moran refused, saying that in the eyes of the prosecuting attorney of Suffolk county, young Roosevelt, although the son of the President, occupied the same position as any other citizen and would receive the same treatment.

Kelly was asked by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter if he wished to make a statement and replied:

"I have nothing to say."

Mr. Perkins added:

"We don't want anything to do with you."

ELUDED CAMERA MAN.

Seeing a photographer and fearing that his picture would be taken, Kelly ran down Pemberton square, while Mr. Perkins stepped in front of the photographer to prevent him from using his camera.

Kelly ran across Tremont street and down Court street. In front of the old courthouse he ran into a woman, almost knocking her down, but he did not stop. He dashed down State street and into No. 53, where his lawyers have their offices.

A little later, when a friend sought him in the offices, it was said he had gone to Cambridge.

The charge against Kelley, who is president of the sophomore class at Harvard, is the result of trouble which he, with young Roosevelt, Meredith Bingden, coxswain of the Harvard varsity crew, and others had on the Common last Thursday night, when Patrolman Fraher was tripped and was painfully injured.

Seemed Not Disturbed.

Kelly, who is tall, thin and wears glasses, took the arraignment smilingly and seemed to regard the whole proceeding as a good joke. He laughed and chatted with his counsel, and when the case was continued left the courtroom apparently without a care.

Young Roosevelt himself and Meredith Blagden have been summonsed before the grand jury to tell what they know of the affair.

Armed with a description warrant, Patrolman Grace of Boston has been watching for Kelly in Cambridge for several days. Yesterday the young man surrendered to Captain Harney of the Cambridge police. Blagden accompanied him to headquarters and furnished $200 cash bail bonds. Kelly, who is twenty-two years old, was born in France, and his parents are said to be living in Paris.

Boys Not Cast Down.

Kelly was silent after his release on bail. He was asked if he tripped Fraher who still is at the Relief Hospital with a broken nose and other injuries.

"I am sorry," he replied, "but you really must excuse me. It would not be proper for me to talk of the case at all. I understand that the authorities have taken the matter in hand, and I must refer you to them."

The three young men did not appear

MAYOR'S EMPLOYES SUMMONED BY MORAN

NEWSPAPER REPORTERS ALSO CALLED IN INQUIRY INTO KILEY CHARGES.

Three of Mayor Fitzgerald's confidential employes and eight City Hall reporters were summonsed to-day to appear before the grand jury to-morrow morning by District Attorney Moran. He will then begin the investigation of the charges made by Daniel J. Kiley that Mayor Fitzgerald in his weekly paper, the Republic had, by means of an editorial, bribed city employes residing in Ward 8 into supporting Edward W. Dixon, the Mayor's candidate for Senator against Kiley.

The summonses were served by Inspector Silas F. Waite. The employes of the Mayor's office summonsed were Colonel Richard F. Field, confidential secretary to the Mayor; Timothy A. Butler, chief clerk in the Mayor's office, and William H. Stack, stenographer to the Mayor. The reporters summonsed were William H. Bolden of the Journal, Timothy F. Geran of the Herald, Edward G. Richardson of the Transcript, John W. Kelley of the Globe, Julian R. Bibliby of the Record, William J. Grealy of the Post, Frederic E. J. Dowling of the Traveler and Frank J. Donahue of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"John Brown" Defendant.

The defendant named in the summonses, and presumed to be Mayor Fitzgerald, is "John Brown et al." Who the "et al" means no one knows at City Hall, but two of the other men who may be named in the case, It is said, are James H. Doyle, superintendent of streets, and Daniel H. Gillespie, superintendent of the sanitary department.

Gillespie, on the day preceding the primaries, visited the North Grove street yard of the sanitary department and threatened, it is charged, told Ward 8 employes that they should support Edward W. Dixon in the primaries.

Doyle at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on the same day visited the Commercial street yard of the paving division and it is charged, told the employes there that in the interests of Foreman Timothy W. Murphy, who had been suspended, they should support Dixon.

District Attorney Moran will bring both Doyle and Gillespie into the investigation, it was said to-day. Julian R. Bibliby of the Record was summoned to District Attorney Moran's office yesterday. It is understood that he is the man who overheard the now celebrated Republic article being read over in the Mayor's office on the Tuesday evening preceding its publication.

On the Friday preceding the publication of the alleged incendiary article in the Republic the Mayor gave advance information in regard to it to Mr. Bowling, the Traveler representative at City Hall, stating, according to the Traveler of that evening, that:

"My views on the political conditions in Ward 8 will be clearly defined in the Republic to-morrow morning." From another source, "as good as if it came from the Mayor himself," the reporter learned that the article would be the freshest political statement ever issued by the Mayor. To other reporters Mayor Fitzgerald stated that he would "show how much friendship there is between the administration and Ward 8." When the Mayor was asked if he desired to reply to Kiley's charges that he was attempting to intimidate Ward 8 men he replied:

"No, action speaks louder than words."

May Also Summons Dolan.

This was on the Saturday that the article came out in the Republic. Through an oversight, Edward F. Fogarty, the Mayor's private stenographer, was not summonsed with the others Friday, but his appearance will be issued for him later in the day. Arthur W. Dolan, the Mayor's secretary, it is said, may also be summonsed.

Mr. Fogarty is a resident of Ward 6, and was formerly employed on the Republic, his address in the current issue of the city directory being given as No. 15 School street, the office of the Republic. While Fogarty is employed by the Mayor his name does not appear upon the city's payrolls, it being stated that he still does stenographic work for the Republic. For his city work he receives bills at the rate of $450 per month, this being charged to the expenses of the Mayor's office.

Summons Mayor's Stenographer.

A summons was issued from the district attorney's office this afternoon commanding the appearance to-morrow morning before the grand jury of Edward T. Fogarty, a Ward 6 man, who is private stenographer to Mayor Fitzgerald. He was acting in this capacity at the time the Republic editorial was written and published in the Mayor's paper.

Fogarty, who lives in Phipps places, off Chester street in the North End, is out of the city on a vacation, but when the notice was served at the Mayor's office this afternoon, attaches there declared that Fogarty would be on hand in the grand jury room to-morrow morning.

VERMONT HOUSE OPENS SESSION

Special to the Boston American.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 3.—The one hundred and twenty-ninth session of the Vermont legislature was called to order to-day at 10 o'clock by Secretary of State F. G. Fleetwood. The chief business transacted this morning was the unanimous election of Thomas C. Cheney of Morrisville as Speaker of the House. Fred L. Hamilton of Salisbury was elected clerk.

To-morrow the Senate and House in joint assembly will listen to the messages of the retiring Governor, C. J. Bell, and of the incoming Governor, Fletcher D. Proctor.

TOWN WIPED OUT BY STORM

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 3.—A special despatch from Pensacola tells of the destruction of the town of Shellbanks, Ala., on the banks of the Perdido Bay, during the recent tropical storm which resulted so disastrously for that section of the South. It is stated that two families were lost in the flood which swept the town away.

Rear Admiral Sigsbe, who has been inspecting the damage at the Pensacola navy yard, announces that loss to the government will be close in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

Roy Knabenshue Performs Perilous Feat at Brockton Fair, and Lands Safely After Navigating Air in Face of Strong Wind.

Special to the Boston American.

BROCKTON, Oct. 3.—Rather than disappoint 40,000 people who crowded the Brockton Fair Grounds today, Roy Knabenshue, the famous aeronaut, made one of the cleverest and most daring ascensions of his career, navigated the ship so that he showed he was its perfect master, and descended while the air was split with the cheers of the uplookers.

Among those who witnessed the manoeuvres of the airship were Governor Curtis Guild, his council and military staff and Rear Admiral George Wilde of the United States Navy. The balloon ascension was the feature of the day and it was regarded as a most pronounced success.

STIFF BREEZE BLOWING.

Knabenshue made his first ascension at 11:40. There was a stiff northeast wind. But he took the chance. There was a shout when the balloon began to soar heavenward. It went up steadily for a distance of probably 200 feet and then the engineer of the untracked atmosphere got to work. At once it was apparent to the thousands of people whose eyes were lifted to the sky that he had perfect control of the ship.

Gracefully, like a winged creature, the balloon sailed about, dipping here and touching upward there, until the apparent design of the navigator became apparent. Then he sailed to the race track, circled it twice, returned to the spot where he had made the ascent, came down to earth with ease and it was all over.

The cheers were deafening. Mr. Knabenshue bowed and smiled.

Knabenshue was particularly anxious to please the people of Brockton this year because he was unable to make an ascension last year. He was lowered then. The cheers to-day obliterated that memory.

Besides being Governor's Day, to-day is the Dog Show Day and Horse Show Day.

In both the dog shows and the horse shows the Vanderbilt family was represented by Alfred G. and Reginald C. Vanderbilt, have large entries and are picked to carry off many of the prizes. They will be shown against some of the best of the strings owned by Mrs. J. Dorrance Daniel, son and Mrs. John Gerken.

To-day's crowd clustered early at the gates. Almost as soon as the grounds were ready for visitors they were thronged. Autos crowded carriages out of place and family conveyances loaded with everyone who could get away for the day found room in the enclosure of the race track.

MRS. PLATT IN RAGE, FLIES AT CAMERA MAN

Senator's Wife Wrecks Photographic Apparatus and Scores Onlookers.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Mrs. Thomaz C. Platt, wife of the aged Senator, while driving through the village of Highland Mills with her daughter, Mrs. Francis J. Carmody, this afternoon, flew into a rage when one of the residents snapped a photograph of her, jumped from her runabout, snatched the camera, and stamping upon it, smashed it into kindling.

She was in a furious temper as she ground the splintering wood and metal of the camera into the roadway. She poured forth a torrent of abuse upon the photographer, and when she had done with that turned to the crowd of newspaper men and villagers who had gathered around and cried: "You're like this wounded here. You're those people who have been lying so much about me."

Plates Were Saved.

There were a few snickers from those on the outskirts of the group of men that surrounded Mrs Platt, and at this she became more enraged than ever. She turned to the crowd and again poured forth such a quantity of vituperation and of such quality as has seldom been heard in Highland Mills.

Then after exhausting her vocabulary, Mrs Platt turned toward her carriage, climbed in and drove back to Tioga Lodge, where she has been since the estrangement from the Senator, including the name of the Platt coachman, J. K. Hedges, first became known.

The ruined camera was left in the road where the angry woman had trodden it into splinters. The photographer smiled a smile of triumph, however, as Mrs. Platt drove off. She had not destroyed the two plates, because he had transferred them to the photobidder after taking her picture.

Went to Telegraph Office.

When Mrs. Platt and her daughter first appeared on the road through the village, having come from Tioga Lodge, it was generally thought that she was about to take a train for New York. It had been said that she intended to come to New York to-day to interview the Senator, so tired of taking the train, however, Mrs. Platt went to the telegraph office. It is believed that she sent a telegram to Senator Platt, but what the message contained but no one could not be learned

LEAGUE VOTES $50,000 FOR IRISH CAUSE

T. P. O'Connor, M. P., at Convention To-day, Predicts Early Home Rule.

1,000 DELEGATES PRESENT

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The United Irish League, at its second annual convention this city, today, unanimously adopted the report presented by John O'Callaghan of Boston, chairman of the ways and means committee, pledging $50,000 during the next two years to aid the cause of Ireland's freedom, and that $10,000 is forwarded within the next ten days to the chairman of the ways and means committee in Ireland.

Nearly 1,000 delegates attended today's session. T. P. O'Connor, M. P., one of the leaders of the Irish party in Parliament, was the chief speaker. National Secretary O'Callaghan, Rev. Joseph Tracy of Pittsburg and Rev. Fiend J. Williams, Newry, County Down, were other speakers.

Mr. O'Connor outlined the plans undertaken for the cause and reviewed the work being done in the British Parliament. He insisted that the day is not far off when the Isle will emerge from home rule and have its own home government.

The speech of Cosdiel John F. Finerty of Chicago was the important feature of the opening session of the convention. Mayor E. Ritzerz of Philadelphia was named as chairman of the committee on resolutions, M. J. Jordon of Boston is chairman of the committee on permanent organization, and E. Carbley of New York of the committee on constitution and bylaws, and L. R. Buckley of Chicago of the committee on ways and means.

Cablegram From Redmond.

After Mayor Weaver's address of welcome a cablegram from John Redmond was read. It was as follows:

"Dublin, "John E. Redmond, United Irish League of America assembled in convention in Philadelphia sends hearty greetings of Irish Parliamentary party. We pledge united and hearty support of this organization to the pledge bound and united party working under John E. Redmond's leadership for Irish national self-government."

Confident of Home Rule.

Triumph was the dominant note of the day's session. Every speaker believed that the prize—home rule for Ireland—so long fought for, is at last within the grasp of the Irish nation. Colonel Flinerty's address was an oratorical effort that aroused the delegates to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. He said in part:

"Although we have not accomplished as much as we hoped, still we have preserved the Irish-American name from the charge of indifference to the cause of Ireland. We have raised during the period of my incumbency in the presidency about $170,000. This amount does not represent the cause.

"I would not stand on this platform to beg for Ireland a provincial concession. She may accept it by necessity for a date, but she does not accept it for the abrogation of sovereignty. Local self-government nations have the right to be free and independent, and if ever God established a nation to be free and independent and put His divine mark upon her Ireland is that nation.

"It is for this I am proud of her, that she cannot be bribed, she cannot be enjoled, she cannot be compelled into any abandonment of her God-given right to independence."

2,410 YEARS IN JAIL FOR HIM

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Alphonse Maroine is facing the possibility of spending 2,410 years in prison, or what part of it he can live out, and he will plead to-day to the indictments, numbering 241, which were found against him by the Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn.

As he could be given ten years on each count, he is in a situation rarely occupied by any one.

Maroine had charge of the postoffice substation at No. 76 Navy street, and the indictments charge him with altering money orders. He is said to have been short $146,000 when arrested.

YALE BURGLAR GETS 19 YEARS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 3.—Charles McLean, colored, who pleaded guilty in the Superior Court to burglary in the homes of ex-President Dwight of Yale and two other Yale professors, was sentenced to nineteen years in State Prison by Judge Reed. McLean is also wanted in Pelham, Larchmont and Mount Vernon, N. Y., for burglaries there. He served on the U. S. S. Tacoma in the navy for a year in 1899 and deserted. He has also done time in Sing Sing.

TWO KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Two persons were fatally injured and scores of others suffered severe injuries to-day in a railroad wreck at Highland Park, Ill., where the fast mail of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, composed of heavy coaches, crashed into a freight train standing on the main line.

30,000 POUNDS BAD CHICKEN.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—The city food inspectors seized yesterday and condemned 30,0000 pounds of cold storage Spring chickens.

BEWARE OF HUMBUG GINGERS
Substituted for Sanford's, be sure it's for your stomach, not the dealer's.

2,000 IN UPRISING; INSURGENTS DEFIANT

GUANTANAMO SITUATION PRECARIOUS; RUSH TROOPS TO SCENE.

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 3.—Serious trouble is threatened over the disarmament of the insurgents which was begun in earnest today.

At Guantanamo the situation is precarious. Two thousand insurgents there have refused to lay down their arms. Marines are being hurried to the spot to reinforce the American force already on guard. It is not believed the trouble will come to open fighting between the rebels and Americans, but the former may take to the woods as bandits.

Awaits Castillo's Orders.

Many of the insurgents have offered to give up their arms if General Del Castillo so orders. He has not yet arrived.

Hundreds of marines are now being dispatched to various points throughout Pinar del Rio province. Orders have been given for sending insurgents recruited from that province to their homes.

Generals Guzman, Guerra and del Castillo have assured the provisional Governor there will be no trouble over the disbanding of the insurgents, but as they had no formerly lost command of many of their followers duty before Intervention came, too much confidence is not placed in their words.

Of the 2,800 men under Guerra, 1,800 will march back to Pinar del Rio and 1,000 will start by rail to-day. General Funston will oversee the surrender of their arms when they reach their destination.

The yellow fever situation has caused considerable anxiety. Six cases have been discovered in scattered localities. Governor Taft is giving a great deal of attention to having the ranks of the marines, as well as the city generally, placed in sanitary condition to reduce the danger from this disease to the minimum.

WINTHROP TO GO TO CUBA; MAGOON FOR THE PHILIPPINES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt to-day had a long conference with Judge Charles E. Magoon, recently retired as Governor of Panama, at the close of which it was announced that the President had decided not to send Magoon to Cuba, as had been contemplated.

Beekman Winthrop, present Governor of Porto Rico, will probably be appointed Provisional Governor of Cuba, as recommended by Secretary Taft, and Judge Magoon will proceed to the Philippines, where he will become Vice-Governor.

INCENDIARY FIRE CAUSES $1,000 LOSS

Tenants in South End Apartment House Are Badly Frightened.

Fire, which the police of the East Dedham street station suspect was set by an incendiary, in the basement of the apartment house at No. 47 East Concord street, to-day, did $1,000 damage and caused excitement among the four tenants, all of whom escaped from the building without much injury.

The fire was discovered shortly after noon by Mrs. T. F. McGrady, who lives on the first floor. Smoke poured into the rooms, and her cries soon attracted the dressed the hallway also filled with smoke attracted the attention of P. Henry Higgins, the janitor who was returning from an errand.

He sent in an alarm. Mrs. McGrady and Mrs. B. McDonald, Mrs. J. O'Hara and Mrs. E. Hamilton, who occupied the other suites, were brought safely to the street. When the blaze was extinguished it was found that it had started in a pile of rubbish at the bottom of the elevator well.

The absence of the janitor and other circumstances led the police to believe the fire may have been of incendiary origin. An investigation is being made.

NEW RAILROAD IN MAINE.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 3.—Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by the New York & Oxford Railway Company, which proposes to construct a standard gauge road, to be operated by electricity, compressed air or animal power, from the terminus of the Atlantic Shore Line Railway to Bridgton Junction, a distance of forty miles.

FOG HOLDS UP TRAFFIC ON SEA AND LAND

Causes Collision at North Station and Makes Thousands Late in Reaching the City.

Dense fog early to-day caused a smash up between two empty trains outside of the North Station, forced all incoming trains loaded with human entombments to creep slowly into Boston all the way from ten minutes to a half hour late, while ferry boats tooted their way painfully across the harbor, and fishing vessels remained tied up at their wharves until the fog should lift. Shortly before 10 a. m. the sun came out, but it was not until nearly 11 o'clock before the heaviest part of the fog had entirely lifted.

At 7:30 a. m. in the North station an outward bound train on the Hamilton & Wenham branch collided with an empty passenger train that was obscured by the fog. The locomotive of the first train was badly damaged and trainman George Sargent was slightly injured. None of the passengers was hurt. The collision caused some delay in the arrival of trains from the suburbs.

At this hour hundreds of commuters were on their way to this city. Many were not stopped, as the wreckage and wrecking train completely blocked the entrance to the station. At 8 o'clock there were thirty-five trains waiting to enter the station.

After the trains had been held up several minutes the passengers, already late for their business, hurried out and walked down the track. There were thousands in the procession of men and women who walked in from the Somervilles, Camerdge and other suburban points.

On other lines the incoming trains were late. On the approach to Boston it was necessary to run at a much slower rate of speed, as the engineers could not see through the fog more than a hundred feet ahead.

JUDGE STOPS TRIAL; ACCUSES 2 OF PERJURY

Court Orders Arrest of Witnesses in McQueeney and Logan Assault Case.

EACH HELD IN $3,000 BAIL

A sensation was sprung in the Superior Criminal Court to-day when Judge Bond ordered the trial of William McQueeney and Andrew Logan, charged with assault on Thomas McCarthy, to come to an abrupt stop and ordered the arrest of Michael J. Kelley of No. 128 Louis street and Thomas Quinn of No. 7 Whitney street, Roxbury, charging them with perjury.

Court officers Joseph Paine and Peter McCann arrested the men as they sat in the witness seats. They were immediately hustled into a side room and Judge Bond announced that bail was fixed at $3,000 each. The jury in the case was dismissed.

McQueeney and Logan are bartenders and live in Roxbury. They were charged with assault and battery on a South End cab driver on the evening of June 10. It was brought out in the trial that they had attended a party at No. 11 Dresden street, Roxbury Falls, and were escorting home two young women, Miss Kate Gordon and Miss Nellie Creedon. It was alleged that McCarthy and a friend followed and argued that they had escorted the young women to the party and they were the proper ones to take them home. A free fight was said to have followed, in which McCarthy sustained a broken arm and several serious body bruises. He was taken to the City Hospital for treatment.

Kelley and Quinn testified that they had seen McCarthy at Roxbury Crossing at 3 o'clock the next morning, which was some time after the fight was alleged to have taken place, and at which time McCarthy was at the City Hospital. In ordering the arrest, Judge Bond said: "I have reason to believe that these witnesses have perjured themselves."

IRWIN, GOODWIN AS JOINT STARS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Nat Goodwin and May Irwin are to be co-stars in a new play to be written for them, according to a story on the Rialto. A preliminary agreement has been signed, and it is said that both are intent to make this the final farewell from the stage, as they are both well to do and have decided to take life easy hereafter.

Goodwin and Miss Irwin have been co-stars before in vaudeville. It was when they were both younger, both weightier and they did a song and dance sketch. The new piece to be written for them will give each a good part. There was a great deal of merriment at the Rialto Theatre here yesterday when Miss Irwin and Miss Goodwin went through their old "turn" in vaudeville.

4 DEAD, 8 HURT IN EXPLOSION

BALTIMORE, Oct. 3.—The displacement of a blast cover on No. "C" furnace caused an explosion at the plant of the Maryland Steel Company, Sparrow's Point, near this city, this morning, killing four men and injuring eight others. One of the latter will die. The company employs 3,000 men.

POLICE INSIST YOUNG MEIKLE IS GUILTY; FRIENDS DISPUTING THIS

DECLARE FATHER OF BOY HELD AS MURDERER WAS A CRAZY SUICIDE

Lynn Officers Differ from State Force, and Say Charge Is Smirch on the Young Man's Future. Guardian Declares Lad Is Innocent.

LYNN, Oct. 3.—Charged with the murder of his father, his only relative in this country, Edgar Weston Meikle, of this city, is locked in a cell at the Salem jail awaiting the appointment of a special court session in which may be heard the details of a case unique in criminal history now absorbing the energies of the State police and the authorities of Essex county.

The defendant, a fifteen-year-old boy, is being prosecuted by the State police, who insist that he is guilty, while the city police of Lynn, having almost a year ago investigated the facts and dismissed them, believe the boy innocent of the crime.

Extensive opportunity, opposition to parental guidance and conflicting statements stand against the lad, but there are a multitude of other circumstances that seem to justify the theory that Charles S. G. Meikle, the father, died by his own hand.

The accused boy's nearest relatives are in Prince Edward's Island, but his life among the residents of Lynn has made him many loyal friends, who, now that serious trouble faces him, are not at all backward in saying that the prosecution of the lad is preposterous and unjust.

Believes Boy Guilty.

Captain William H. Proctor of the State police, the prosecuting officer, says:

"I am satisfied of the boy's guilt. There were developments at the inquest held by Judge Berry of Lynn which prosecution of the Grand Jury resulted in an indictment. I think that a conviction will result."

Deputy Chief of Police Bartlett of Lynn says:

"We have devoted days to the case, and this department is convinced that the theory that Charles S. G. Meikle committed suicide.

"The Lynn police are not foolish enough to set a murderer go unpunished under their very noses. It is too bad to smirch the lad's future in this way."

Here are some of the points against the boy:

Edgar Meikle disobeyed his father and run away from school.

He stayed out late at night, and several nights did not return home.

His father had scolded him on the day of the shooting.

Was with Father When Shot.

Father and son were alone in the kitchen when the fatal shot was fired.

The bullet entered at the left cheek, which the police say is an unnatural way for a right handed person to shoot himself.

The revolver was found on top of the low chest after the shooting.

The boy told conflicting stories, the State police allege.

Once he had run away, after stealing rent money and his father made it up with the landlord.

These are the points in favor of the accused:

He had a good bringing up until the death of his mother, 11 years ago. He attended Sunday school and church until toward the last, when he desired to go to work.

The father had been brooding over his wife's death. He suffered from hallucinations and failed to remember the faces of his neighbors at times.

He was mournful in appearance and had expressed himself as tired of living. He kept a thirty-two calibre revolver.

The boy said the revolver was missing until his father produced it from his pocket at noon and shot himself.

A circumstance that may be either for the murderer or the suicide is that on the Saturday before the tragedy the father slept until late in the morning and his son was gone when neighbors, entering, found the gas turned on in the kitchen and the rooms reeking with the poisonous vapor. It was believed an attempt at suicide was made, though the prosecution holds that it was turned on in play.

Says Boy is Innocent.

Joseph Trimble of No. 59 Lexington street is the guardian of Edgar Meikle. Mrs. Trimble was the closest friend of Mrs. Charles Meikle up to the time of her death. She has stood for the boy on every occasion and especially since the tragic death of the father, and in the Trimble home that Edgar was arrested on Monday evening by State Officer Hayes. Mrs. Trimble says the boy is innocent and that she will stand by him. To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter she said:

"At the time of the shooting Edgar was attending the ninth grade school and was going to Sunday school at St. Stephen's Church. The boy wanted to work, his father wanted him to continue at school. The lad was so tall for his age, being then perhaps five feet ten inches, that he was ashamed, for he said the other pupils called him 'slow,' whereas he was actually studious and quick to learn.

Told of Suicide Attempt.

"Their landlord, Jere McCarthy, came to my house after the tragedy and said that on the Saturday before Mr. Meikle had tried suicide with gas, but had since promised never to attempt it again.

"As to Edgar's honesty, I want to say that in the last year he has lived at my house and seen money lying about continually, and never disturbed a cent.

"He reads newspapers and religious papers, and I never heard of his reading cheap novels. Magazines were his preference.

"Edgar has an uncle, Roland Meikle, in Charlottetown, Prince Edward's Island, who came on after the shooting and wanted to take Edgar back. The boy chose to remain with us. My husband as his guardian holds $1,800 left by the father.

Got His Father's Dinners.

"Edgar's father worked. The boy used to get the dinners. Together they made their other meals. The house was always in disorder. The boy would not enter the house after his father's death. He is a rather timid lad. Sometimes when crossed he was a trifle surly, but that is the worst that can be said of his disposition.

"The father was of unsound mind. His physician said so. His shopmates noticed it, as he would pass his friends with a stony look. He carried $1,000 in his pocket, rather than intrust it to the banks. The money was mostly in gold.

"I visited the boy in his cell in Salem jail yesterday and it has broken me up more than anything in a long time. They would not let me shake hands with him, but stand outside the bars of his cell to talk. I could hardly find words. But Edgar said:

"'Oh Kit, isn't this dreadful. I cannot come out to see you. They have got me locked up for pathing. But don't you cry, they won't do anything to me.'

"I answered: 'All you can do is pray. Pray morning and night, Edgard.'

"He answered: 'I will Kit. You know I didn't do it. And the big policeman took me down to a room after we left your house Kit and told everything to me—told me I would be hanged, too.'

REPUBLICANS NAME PAIGE.

WORCESTER, Oct. 3.—In the Seventh District Republican Convention yesterday Calvin D. Paige of Southbridge defeated the William A. Ettle of Worcester for Councilor by a vote of 129 to 81.

Deputy Neal finds it impossible to pull the trigger of the revolver holding it in this position. Meikle was right handed and was shot in the left cheek.

In this position Deputy Neal shows how he thinks Meikle was shot—by another.

Deputy Neal says that it is possible Meikle might have pulled the trigger with his thumb, but that he does not think the bullet would have taken the course it did.

DEPUTY CHIEF NEAL'S METHOD OF DEMONSTRATING THAT MEIKLE COULD NOT HAVE KILLED HIMSELF.

GRAND JURY CALLS SON OF PRESIDENT

bowed down. They attended an initiation at a Plympton street clubhouse in the evening. It was said that Alderman Bangs of this city, who was an usher at the Roosevelt-Longworth wedding, and who successfully defended Theodore, Jr., from the nuisance of a warrant Saturday, would appear for Kelly today.

Charged with Assault.

Roosevelt, Kelly and Bladgen were going home to Cambridge after attending a performance at a Boston theatre when they were arrested at 11:30 o'clock Thursday night by Patrolmen Grace, Murray and Fraher of station 4, charged with an assault on an unknown man. Fraher was also assaulted, but by whom he does not know.

Roosevelt and his companions were accompanied by a fourth man, also said to be a Harvard student, but his name was withheld by them because as they said they did not wish to get him into trouble.

At station 4, where young Roosevelt was taken, he told who he and was released.

Police Commissioner O'Meara took up the case next day, declaring that if any offence had been committed, it didn't make any difference to him whether the son of the President had been implicated or not. He proposed to prosecute those who were guilty.

Fraher Goes to Hospital.

Patrolman Fraher had reported to the station that one of the men had assaulted him by tripping him up and that he had sustained a fracture of the nose and other injuries. He had to go to the hospital. The man who is alleged to have tripped him on the Common pathway was not arrested. He is said to be the man whose name has been concealed by young Roosevelt and his companions.

The story at the time was that the four students were walking through the Common and were noticed by Patrolmen Grace and Fraher acting in what was considered a boisterous manner. The officers were in plain dress. They said that the men came up to them, and looking in their faces asked:

"Are you married?"

"No, they are not married," one of them said, after which all departed, according to the story of the officers.

Then Rope Over Him.

The men then went to another bench and asked the same question of a man who sat there. He is said to have been Meredith Bladgen, who had been temporarily separated from the others. The officers said that the same question was asked of Bladgen, and that when he didn't respond the others threw a rope over him and dragged him along the walk. Then the officers gave chase and caught young Roosevelt, taking him to station 4 on the charge of assault. In the chase after the men on the Common Fraher was injured.

Next day the whole matter was taken up by Police Commissioner O'Meara, and he ordered the Station 4 police to complain of young Roosevelt in the Municipal Court. A warrant was applied for before Judge Sullivan, but after hearing the statement of the young man he decided that there was no ground for the issuing of a warrant. So Roosevelt and his companions were allowed to go.

This disposition of the case does not suit District Attorney Moran, who thinks it has not been probed to the bottom. He therefore decided yesterday that the grand jury should look over the whole case and decide if there had been any crime committed. The fact that a policeman had been injured, presumably by some one in the company of Roosevelt and his chums, appealed to the District Attorney.

MORAN STATEMENT IN STUDENTS' CASE

District Attorney Moran has issued this statement in connection with the investigation of the Harvard students' frolic in the Common last Thursday night:

"Last Thursday night Roosevelt and a companion were running away from two officers who were chasing them. Roosevelt's companion ran out of the officer's way, and a collision, as a result of which the officer was severely injured and his nose broken, and he is still at the hospital. Roosevelt was caught, the other man was not. Roosevelt was taken to the station with the officers, but declined to give the name of his friend who had the trouble with the officer. The police officer said to him he thought his father would have advised him to give the name, but Roosevelt said, 'I don't think he would.'

Failed to Call Witnesses.

"Application was made by the police to the Judge of the lower court for warrants against Roosevelt and his friends. The Judge heard one witness—one of the police officers—and said there was no evidence against Roosevelt. The hearing was in court before Monday, and last Monday morning the court issued a descriptive warrant and notified the man as the officers said done. Monday and a part of Tuesday they were searching for the man and saw probably 100 who would answer the description."

Prompted Only by Duty.

Mr. Moran concluded that there was liable to be a miscarriage of justice, and the police officers would not be able to find the right man; that it became his duty as prosecuting officer to call upon Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bladgen and compel them to give the name of their friend who had the trouble with the officer, and prevent their testimony and that of the police officers to the grand jury, and, if warranted, ask for an indictment.

On Monday Mr. Moran caused summonses to be issued for the appearance of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bladgen, and the police before the Grand Jury on Thursday. The summonses were turned over to Chief Watts on Tuesday, and Mr. Moran directed that they should be served at once. As a result late last night the friend of Mr. Roosevelt surrendered and this morning was taken before the lower court and his case was continued for a week because of the inability of the assaulted officer to appear. The name of the man who surrendered is Shaun Kelly.

This morning Mr. Moran and Mr. Bangs and Mr. Bangs, counsel for Mr. Roosevelt, called on Mr. Moran and asked that the case before the Grand Jury be discontinued. Mr. Moran said that as the witnesses had been summoned they must appear on Thursday and go before the Grand Jury. He said he would report that the lower court was not acting in the case and the Grand Jury would probably decide to let the matter stand over until the lower court had concluded.

Same Law for All.

The chief reason urged by Mr. Bangs for the continuance of the case was the publicity it would give. Mr. Moran said in reply that Mr. Roosevelt had brought the publicity upon himself; that it was his duty to have after him and report the information as to whom this man was who had the trouble, and that Mr. Roosevelt, although the President's son, will be treated by the prosecuting officer of this County as any other man.

SENATOR CLARK SENATOR'S FIST HURT IN AUTO SAVES LADIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Private information from Paris sent to friends of United States Senator W. A. Clark of Montana was the basis for a story that gained considerable circulation here to-day to the effect that the Senator was suffering from injuries received abroad in an automobile accident which were of so serious a nature as to practically render recovery impossible. It was said that he had sustained fractures of two ribs as well as internal injuries.

According to the report, great secrecy had been maintained by the Senator and his wife, who had accompanied him on the automobile tour through Brittany, which ended with the accident in which both were buried from their car.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 3.—Senator and multi-millionaire George W. Whitney is receiving the congratulations of his friends for the way he handled a tough customer at the Brattleboro race track. The man was drunk and made himself obnoxious to the ladies. When the millionaire track lover ordered the man to behave himself, the latter attempted to duck Senator Whitney's mantle out with a club, but a few slaps to the face from the Senator sent the man cowering from the race track.

A telegram to H. S. Bridgman of Brooklyn conveyed the news of Dr. Cook's feat.

A Reasonable Plea For the Stomach

If Your Stomach is Lacking in Digestive Power, Why Not Help the Stomach Do Its Work—Especially When It Costs Nothing To Try!

Not with drugs, but with a reinforcement of digestive agents such as are naturally at work in the stomach? Scientific analysis shows that digestion requires pepsin, nitrogenous ferments, and the secretion of hydrochloric acid. When your food fails to digest, it is proof positive that some of these agents are lacking in your digestive organization.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but these natural elements necessary to digestion and when placed at work in the weak stomach and small intestines, supply what these organs need. They stimulate the gastric glands and gradually bring the digestive organs back to their normal condition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been subjected to critical chemical tests at home and abroad and are found to contain nothing but natural digestives.

Chemical Laboratory, Telegraphic address, "Diffindo," London. Telephone No. 11078 Central. 29 Cullum St. Fenchurch St. E. C.

London, 9th Aug., 1900.

I have analyzed most carefully a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets (which I bought myself at a city druggist's shop for the purpose) manufactured by the F. A. Stuart Co., Temple Chambers, London, E. C., and have to report that I cannot find any trace of vegetable or mineral poisons. Knowing the ingredients of the tablets, I am of opinion that they are admirably adapted for the purpose for which they are intended. (Signed)

JOHN R. BROOKE, F.I.C., F.C.S.

There is no secret in the preparation of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Their composition is commonly known among physicians and is shown by the recommendations of 40,000 licensed physicians in the United States and Canada. They are the most popular of all remedies for indigestion, dyspepsia, water brash, insomnia, loss of appetite, constipation, heartburn, flatulency and kindred diseases originating from improper dissolution and assimilation of food. They are thoroughly reliable and harmless to man or child.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are at once a safe and a powerful remedy. One grain of these tablets being strong enough to digest 3,000 grains (about 6 pounds) of steak, eggs and other foods. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest your food for you when your stomach can't.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package or send to us direct for a free trial sample package and you will be surprised at the result. F. A. Stuart Co., 64 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

GIRLS THROWN INTO PANIC BY FACTORY FIRE

Many of Them Have to Be Conducted to Safety by Firemen.

Thrown into a panic by a cry of fire, and nearly blinded by great volumes of smoke which filled the rooms where they worked, fifty girl employes of the United Footwear Company at No. 1,240 Columbia road, South Boston, were nearly overcome at 8.30 a. m. to-day.

The smoke was so dense that they could hardly grope their way along and many of them had to be led down the stairs by firemen. All reached the street in safety.

The fire caught in the new annex, it originated in the basement from some unknown cause. A quantity of celluloid was stored there and this caused an unusual amount of smoke. The damage was slight and is covered by insurance.

6 PRIMARY FRAUDS PROBE IN WARD NINE

Moran Leaders Petition Supreme Court to Find Out Why 377 Ballots Were Spoiled.

Charging gross election frauds in Ward 9, the home of Leader "Jim" Donovan, upon the day of the State primaries, Tuesday, September 25, former Alderman Patrick Bowen and David F. Barry, who led the fight for Moran in that ward, announced today that they would file a petition with the Supreme Court for an inquiry into the voting in that ward. This is the only manner provided by law for such an investigation.

The alleged fraud was revealed at the Faneuil Hall recount. The frauds were committed, it is alleged, in the interests of the machine ticket, headed by Senator John J. Gartland and unpledged to any candidate for Governor. Three hundred and seventy-seven ballots were spoiled in the seven precincts of Ward 9 by double crossing of two State delegations.

Pledged to Moran.

The machine delegation was headed by John J. Gartland and was unpledged, while the anti-machine delegation was headed by Barry and Bowen, and was pledged to Moran and the Moran organization. The delegations are voted for by marking a cross in the circle at the top of the delegation, and 377 ballots had crosses marked in the circle at the top of both delegations, thus nullifying the choice of the voter.

The marking of the extra cross is alleged to have been done while the ballots were being counted, the second cross being in almost every instance marked in a different manner from the first one.

That the marking of the extra cross was done in the interests of the machine ticket is shown conclusively by the fact that while only forty ballots on which the machine ticket was voted for were rejected by this extra crossing, 337 ballots of the opposition or Moran ticket were destroyed. The tally sheet in Precinct 7, Ward 9, was also missing when the ballots were returned to the election commissioners.

Say Moran Would Have Won.

Edward F. Fitzgerald and Daniel L. Sullivan were the candidates of the machine for representative, while Elbert H. Clark, the renowned athlete, Councilman John W. Craig and Timothy F. Callahan, a protege of Clark, were running against the machine. It was on the ballots on which the Barry ticket and Clark and Craig or Clark and Callahan were voted for that the three hundred and thirty-seven extra crosses were made, while on the tickets where Fitzgerald and Sullivan were voted for both State delegations were voted for but forty times.

Had these been no defaced ballots in Ward 9 it appears conclusive that the ticket pledged to Moran would have been elected.

ROMANCE AND TRAGEDY ARE LINKED IN WEDDING

MISS JENNIE CORMACK

GIRL WHOM FRANCIS PERRY WEDS TO-NIGHT.

Miss Cormack to Be Bride of Francis Perry, Whose Former Fiancee Was Slain by Father.

Romance and tragedy are linked in the wedding, to take place this evening, of Miss Jennie Cormack to Francis Perry, at the home of the young woman, No. 27 Longfellow street, Dorchester.

Mr. Perry, who is an orange grower of Alto, Fla., was formerly engaged to Miss Patsy Townsend of Everett, but on the eve of their marriage last March the father of his fiancee, in a crazed condition, shot his daughter and then killed himself.

Miss Townsend was employed in a music store, and was a close friend of Miss Cormack, who was employed in the same place. Grief and sympathy over the tragedy brought Mr. Perry and Miss Cormack closer together. Their friendship ripened into love, and not long ago it was announced to the immediate friends of the young woman that she was about to become the bride of the orange grower.

The ceremony will be performed at the Cormack home, which has been prettily decorated for the occasion. Because of the painful circumstances connected with the previous preparations for a wedding, the occasion this evening will be a very quiet one.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Stillman H. Jackson, pastor of the Dorchester Temple Baptist Church. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Perry will go to his home in Florida, where they will make their permanent home.

Burglar's Trophies of Wholesale Raid Now Await Claimants.

IDENTIFY PART OF LOOT

A list of articles of jewelry alleged to have been stolen from houses burglarized by Charles J. Cardiff, now in custody on the specific charge of breaking and entering No. 8 Faxon street, Dorchester, was made public today by Chief Inspector Watts, in the hope that the owners will appear at police headquarters and claim them.

When arrested in a North End pawnshop, Cardiff had upon him enough jewelry to start a small store. Maria L. Bettis and Edith Ogden, who reside at the Faxon street address, have identified as their property a number of the articles, valued at $124.

There is a list of the remainder, valued at several hundred dollars, still awaiting claimants.

WALES HAS BIG LABOR FIGHT

LONDON, Oct. 3.—One of the most momentous fights in the labor history of Great Britain is proceeding at Cardiff and at Swansea, two of the principal ports in Wales, where a desperate attempt is being made to compel British trade unionists to adopt Socialism. At Cardiff there is a conference of delegates representing 600,000 railway employes, and at Swansea there is a conference of representatives of 528,000 miners.

The Socialists yesterday captured the railway conference, and hope to-day to capture the miners'.

YESTERDAY'S SHOPPER IDENTIFIED IN A HURRY

The Original of This Snapshot Will Receive a Prize of $2.

Original of Snapshot Calls Promptly and Receives the Reward of $2.

YESTERDAY'S snapshot of a woman shopper didn't go begging for a claimant long. It was promptly identified yesterday afternoon, almost as soon as the later editions were on the street.

The lucky shopper was Miss Margaret S. Dempsey of No. 291 East Fifth street, South Boston, and the Camera Man caught her Monday in the shopping rush near Houston's.

"This prize comes in handy," said Miss Dempsey as she received the award of $2. "I am just beginning my vacation, and I am sure the money will give me added pleasure. It is a genuine surprise. I had no idea the Camera Man had caught me until my brother showed me my picture in the AMERICAN."

Moral—When the Camera Man catches you be prompt to claim the award, which is yours for the asking.

PEACH STONE FAST IN THROAT FOR HOURS

BRIDGETON, Oct. 3.—While Simon Cosaborn of North Bridgeton was eating a peach the stone slipped down his throat and lodged. Surgical aid was procured, but all efforts to remove the obstruction failed.

After a night of intense suffering the stone passed on into his stomach, yesterday relieving his agony, but leaving him in a completely exhausted condition.

HUNDREDS OF PUPILS GIVEN FIRE FRIGHT

Blaze Opposite Eliot Grammar School Causes Commotion for a Time.

MAN HURT BY EXPLOSION

Fire at No. 23 Tileston street, opposite the Eliot Grammar School, caused by an explosion of gas, caused some excitement among the several hundred pupils in the school shortly after 10 o'clock today.

The explosion occurred under the stoop. The escaping gas was ignited by a candle in the hands of Boolnick Cordilo, who lives in the house. Cordilo was blown eight feet through the entrance under the stoop. He was slightly injured.

The noise of the explosion, the smoke from the fire and the arrival of the engines caused many of the pupils to jump from their seats, while several of the teachers rushed for the doors leading to the fire escapes to arrange preliminaries of the fire drill. It was soon found that there was no cause for alarm, and in a few minutes the regular routine of the school had been resumed. The damage caused by the fire was slight.

PRETTY 12-YEAR-OLD GIRL TO NAME SUBMARINE TO-MORROW

Will Christen It Octopus When It Glides Down Ways at Fore River Yards.

Boat Is One of the Largest Under-Water Fighters Yet Built. Is Officially Known as No. 9.

Pretty little twelve-year-old Frances Webster, daughter of Edwin S. Webster, of Brookline, will be sponsor for the United States submarine boat Octopus to be launched at the Fore River ship yards next Thursday. Miss Frances is also the granddaughter of Frank G. Webster, a member of the firm of Kidder, Peabod & Co. She is an unusually bright, pleasing personality, and is building over nowadays in anticipation of christening one of Uncle Sam's fighting ships that may some day figure prominently in a great battle.

The Octopus is one of the largest of this class of war vessel under construction at the Fore River yards. She is larger than the Cuttlefish, which was launched some time a

At the ship yards she is known now as submarine No. 9. At noon, Thursday, when little Miss Wer ter breaks the bottle across the bow, and the cigar-shaped craft glides into the water she will be known to future generations as the Octopus.

A special car will leave Boston on the 10:45 train Thursday morning carrying the Fore River Shipbuilding Company's guests to the scene of the launching. A luncheon will be served in one of the buildings after the Octopus has "made her bow" to the assemblage and the party will return at 1:50 p. m., arriving in Boston at 2:17.

RHEUMATISM CURED.

Eliminated by Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona.

Attacks of Rheumatism are invariably preceded and caused by a poor run down condition of the blood. The blood becomes weakened and is impregnated with an excess of uric acid and other poisons which produce the peculiar and painful condition known as rheumatism.

The Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona enriches the blood and drives out the impurities. Its gentle tonic properties act directly upon the liver, kidneys and digestive organs, stimulating the healthy functional action of these parts and thus eliminating the uric acid from the blood. At the same time this rare medicinal wine, rich in phosphates in their most easily assimilated form and the tonic properties of cinchona bark, revitalizes the nerves and tones up the whole system wonderfully.

As a remedy for nervous troubles, loss of appetite, insomnia or anemia, the Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona has no equal in the realm of medicine.

From thousands of testimonials received we quote as follows:

Messrs. Motard, Fils & Soucest:
Gentlemen—I am using the Trappist Fathers' Wine of Cinchona for Neurasthaenia and am improving rapidly. Yours truly,
EUGENE CHARBONNEAU,

SAYS MARINE BAND IS UNION

That the Marine Band is a union organization and is regularly affiliated with the Knights of Labor is the reply of the managers of the Food Fair to the charge that they have employed a non-union band. General Manager Frank H. Haynes of the Food Fair said:

The statement that the Marine Band is a non-union one is untrue. Every member of the Marine Band is a member of Washington Musical Assembly 4,308, K. of L. The members joined the Knights of Labor in 1898, when that body was the leading labor organization in the United States. At that time John Philip Sousa was director of the band. They have continued up to this time to be members of that organization.

GREEKS SWIM ASHORE; CAUGHT

Three young Greek immigrants jumped over the side of the White Star liner Canopic, lying at its dock in Charlestown early to-day, and after swimming ashore were arrested by the marine guard at the Charlestown navy yard, where they landed. The men were being detained by the immigration officials and feared they would be returned to Europe. They are Panteleon Pantozes, aged sixteen years; John Karapanonis, aged seventeen years, and Sakalakas Straits, aged twenty-one. Relatives were expected to claim them. If they do not come the young men will be deported.

ALLEGE THEFT OF "L" FARES

Charged with stealing fares amounting to forty cents from the Boston Elevated Railroad Company, Paul E. Bryan, 22 years of age, of No. 22 Irving street, Somerville, was to-day arrested by Lieutenant Carter of the Somerville police, and inspectors Rooney, Wolf and McCauley of Boston. Bryan, it is alleged by detectives of the company, failed to turn in six fares collected by him on September 13, and two fares collected on September 15.

RICH ONCE; NOW DEAD IN BOWERY

Special despatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN from New York tell of the death to-day in a Bowery lodging house of John S. Lee, at one time a wealthy resident and property owner of Boston. The cause of death is unknown. In the man's pocket was found a white powder, supposed to be a drug, also several pawn tickets and receipts for taxes paid on Nos. 46 and 48 Tyler street, Boston, and on other property in Ward 12.

Lee was the son of James Lee of No. 19 James street, Boston. At that address it was stated to-day that the deceased had been in New York for three months, but nothing had been heard from him for a month and that his parents will go after the body. Lee was forty years old and unmarried.

Great Challenge Sale

The Country's Premier Selling Event

NO sale in the annals of Boston retailing has generated the extraordinary enthusiasm that characterizes this CHALLENGE sale—an enthusiasm that is inspired by the fearless, frank, open and explicit desire on our part to CHALLENGE competition to meet our prices. Fifteen years ago, Mr. Henry Siegel conceived this sale—adopted this means of conveying in a graphic manner the price-making power of the Siegel chain of stores—and the Challenge sale has steadily advanced in public esteem and is justly regarded as the premier selling event of the country. We're content to let the verdict rest with you—the strength of any store must be measured by its ability to distribute reliable merchandise at lowest prices—and this sale derives the essence of its being from our avowed purpose to undersell any store in New England. It is a sale that is achieving its purpose—A CHALLENGE that remains unanswered. The conclusion is inevitable. Some of the reasons:

HOME REBUKE TO E. S. DRAPER BY LABOR MEN

Milford, of Which Hopedale Is Practically a Part, Indorses E. Gerry Brown.

ALL TRADES REPRESENTED

MILFORD, Oct. 3.—No better evidence of the purpose of organized labor to defeat Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper for re-election has been afforded than the indorsement that has been given the candidacy of E. Gerry Brown by the labor leaders of Milford. Hopedale, under the thumb of the Draper Manufacturing Company, which is really a part of Milford, is without union organization, and the tenancy against Draper and for Brown by Milford unions is read by many as voicing the sentiments of the workingmen of Hopedale and the neighboring towns.

Representing every union in Milford, twenty-four of the strongest leaders of the town have signed the indorsement of E. Gerry Brown. Secretary Clancy of the Central Labor Union writes that every man in Milford who has the best interests of organized labor at heart favors the nomination of Mr. Brown for Lieutenant-Governor, in the belief and hope that he will be able to receive such support from the wage earners and the independents that he will defeat Lieutenant-Governor Draper.

The union men of Milford assert that they will do all in their power to elect the candidacy of Mr. Brown, no matter under what designation his name may be placed on the State ticket. The Milford labor leaders who have indorsed Mr. Brown are: William F. Clancy, secretary Central Labor Union and member of the Massachusetts Wage Earners' Union; Patrick C. Dacey, president of the C. L. U.; Edward Beaupre, president Granite Cutters' Union; Patrick H. Morin, president Milford Bartenders' Union; William F. Mc-Avoy, ex-secretary Engineers' Union; Daniel F. Carney, ex-president C. L. U.; Frank J. Inverdi, ex-president C. L. U.; Frank X. Trudell, ex-president C. L. U.; August Thomas, ex-president Clicamaker's Union; Edward King, secretary Independence League; William H. Cole, secretary Bartenders' Union; George J. Innis, Quarrymen's Union; John Mahoney, Michael Brown and John McNeil, Quarrymen's Union; Oswald Dugnani and Peter Serrichierkcen's Union; Isaac Pelkey and William F. Rose, Engineers' Union; John J. Donohue, Joseph Bolio and President John Holmes of the Opperative Union; Joseph Tremblay, president Derrickmen's Union.

WORKINGMEN OF SPRINGFIELD IN LINE FOR BROWN

One of the handsomest indorsements of the candidacy of E. Gerry Brown for the Lieutenant-Governor has been contributed by the leaders of organized labor in Springfield. Almost without exception the men who have made the cause of the working man strong in the City of Homes favor his nomination for second place on the ticket by the Democrats.

Richard A. Hennessey, former president of the Central Labor Union for several terms and at present corresponding secretary of the Bricklayers' Union, writes to Mr. Brown:

Praises Consistent Record.

"It will give me the greatest pleasure to do all I possibly can to promote your candidacy and election as Lieutenant-Governor. Your consistent record as a staunch fighter for the cause of labor and your forceful advocacy of the principles of organized labor and the rights of the common people entitle you to the hearty, unstinted, unselfish support of all union men and all progressive, liberal-minded men.

"Every wage earner and every business man who has to fight against the favorities accorded to great corporations should welcome the opportunity to vote for you, which is tantamount to an opportunity of defeating the present Lieutenant-Governor, Eben S. Draper, who has always been a stumbling block in the path of organized labor."

Mr. Hennessey's sentiments are shared by the other prominent labor men of Springfield, many of whom are delegates to the Democratic State Convention.

Among those who have written indorsements of E. Gerry Brown and promised him their support are:

Others Who Indorse Brown.

Councilman William H. Grady, delegate to the Central Labor Union and business agent for the Building Trades Alliance; John C. Bennett, Machinists' Union and president of the Democratic City Committee; Herbert E. Bryant, for eight years New England organizer for the moulders and at present superintendent of the Springfield Foundry Company; Michael J. Markley, president of the Plumbers' Union; T. J. Costello, treasurer of the Painters' Union; George W. Sullivan of the Painters; George W. Curtis, recording secretary of the Bricklayers' Union; John J. Walsh, president of the Bricklayers; M. J. Haggerty, E. G. Sullivan, James J. McDonough of the Bricklayers.

NO THAW TRIAL TILL JANUARY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Harry K. Thaw's trial for the murder of Stanford White will probably not begin before next January, according to officials of the district attorney's office, who are working on the case, in a statement from them to-day.

"It is even possible," said one of the deputy assistant district attorneys, "that the trial will not go on before next March."

Paula Desmond, the actress, who knew all the principals in the Thaw tragedy and was threatened with arrest by Assistant District Attorney Garvan unless she accepted service of a subpoena in the case, agreed to-day to be at the district attorney's office on October 15.

WASHINGTON'S SONAT SCHOOL

BEVERLY, Oct. 3.—Booker T. Washington, Jr., son of the principal of Tuskegee College, and a student at Dartmouth College, went to Newburyport Monday with some friends and did not return on the same car with them. Promptly, as a schoolboy joke, the story was circulated that he had disappeared. He did not report for supper and the story grew.

Later in the evening, however, according to the authorities of the academy, young Washington returned and has since occupied his accustomed place in the school.

LABOR CALLS FOR PLACE ON BOTH STATE TICKETS

WAGE-EARNERS' CLUBS MAKE THEIR POSITION CLEAR TO STATE COMMITTEES.

The Wage-earners of Massachusetts organized in State and subordinate wage-earners' clubs have loaned a letter to the Democratic and Republican State Committees, requesting that a labor man be nominated on the regular tickets to be put in the field at the conventions to be held Thursday and Friday.

The letter is as follows:

"Dear Sir: At the conference of Wage-earners' clubs of the State held on August 14, 1906, in Dexter Hall, Boston, Mass., it was voted that we request the nomination of some wage-earner, 'labor man,' upon your ticket. We believe we have that right and are deserving of the same. You will find in our ranks men of ability, their one aim being Justice to all. You will find inclosed printed circular matter that we hope your convention will adopt.

"Trusting that we will receive justice, I am respectfully yours,

"D. D. BRISCOLL,
"Secretary Committee of 15."

Want Candidates on Record.

The circular accompanying the letter contains the platform of the Wage Earners' Clubs, and the following resolutions which were adopted and which President E. Gerry Brown and Secretary Driscoll were directed to send to both political parties:

"We demand the nomination of union men upon the State ticket.

"We demand that candidates place themselves on record either for or against the overtime bill, and also state their position upon the eight-hour day for public works, cities and towns.

"We demand the abolition of the writ of injunction in labor disputes. We demand the initiative and referendum, and the Boston need to be built political parties during labor controversies.

Labor Man for Bureau Chief.

"We recommend that in the event of a change in the office of chief of the Massachusetts Bureau of Labor Statistics that a union man only be selected for that position, and we further believe that union men should be placed on the permanent list of clerks in that department. We demand that members of organized labor be recognized in appointments to the State police."

FITZGERALD PLANNING TO SEIZE THE MACHINE

Ready to Upset Moran Men and Take Chairmanship of Convention.

Mayor Fitzgerald has at last shown his hand in the State convention fight. Agreeing to be a candidate for temporary chairman of the convention after ex-Mayor and John F. Feeney of Woburn, one of the campaign managers for John B. Moran, is giving aid and support to the enemies of Moran.

In the effort to embarrass the friends of Moran in the management of the State convention the Democrats have been looking around for someone of prominence to contest the Moran program. They report to-day that Mayor Fitzgerald will accept the temporary chairmanship and they are in high glee over his willingness to "butt in" and help the scheming.

Expects to Be Easy Winner.

Relying on his popularity with the Boston delegates and his hold on many of them through the patronage power of the public office the Mayor expects to be an easy winner in the convention fight for the chairmanship honors.

The Moran managers do not propose to be down by any means. They insist that they can carry through their program, and declare the Mayor will lose prestige by seeking if he persists in opposing Mr. Feeney. They look to see the Mayor withdraw at the last moment, with a statement to the effect that he never authorized anyone to say he would be a candidate for the place.

That the Moran managers would sharply resent the interference of Mayor Fitzgerald and that District Attorney Moran would retaliate at the very first opportunity is evident from the remarks that have been made by the latter's friends relative to the latest piece of easy work credited to the new political boss of Boston.

Fitzgerald's willingness to yield to the Moran element has all along surprised people who are acquainted with the Mayor's political methods. The attempt to make him temporary chairman, to which he is said to have willingly offered himself, was simply for the purpose of starting a good, sized row in the convention and affording the Mystic Seven of the Quincy-Sullivan faction an opportunity to issue a bolting manifesto.

Warned to Watch Mayor.

Moran has been warned to look out for Fitzgerald, and has rather expected some such break as this at the last minute before the convention. He has declared emphatically that he will not compromise with the Cockleys, Dennisons or Fitzgerald, and that he will be found on the floor of the Mayor to name any of the Boston delegates who will be the liveliest kind of a trouble. He is smiling grimly and saying little, where warned of treachery on the part of the Boston bosses. "Let them go ahead."

Several instances have come to the attention of the Moran managers of attempts on the part of the Mayor to spoil their plans. Refusing to be friendly to Moran and asserting that he hopes that he will be elected Governor, the Mayor, it is said, is trying to head off Moran giving the lie to the words.

Dennison's connection with the district attorney's office ceases to-day. His resignation has been accepted. It is not for the purpose of going on the stump for Moran that Dennison has resigned. Moran does not want him on the stump. He will not be appointed district attorney in the event of Moran's election as Governor.

That Dennison has resigned Moran does not want him on the stump. He will not be appointed district attorney in the event of Moran's election as Governor.

Moran does not want him on the stump. He will not be appointed district attorney in the event of Moran's election as Governor.

That the Cockleys and Mayor Fitzgerald tried to have Moran refuse to accept the resignation of Dennison is a fact, and that Moran, in reply, suggested that he would accept it upon receipt of another resignation.

Sharp Retort to Mayor.

That Mayor Fitzgerald to Fitzgerald to mind his own business and not attempt to influence him in any matter, and savagely intimated to him that he wanted none of the Mayor's political combinations to promote his candidacy is the star fact of the inside.

One instance where the Mayor butted in was in trying to get ex-Senator Richard Sullivan to withdraw from the State convention in favor of Edward F. McSweeney.

District Attorney Moran is not surprised at anything that is being done just now. In fact, he expects more sensational underhand work in the Democratic ranks before the campaign is over.

Even though not successful in defeating Moran the promoters of the present row will try to make the convention as ridiculous as possible, so as to affect the vote and injure the candidate.

JEWS JOIN IN 8-DAY FEAST

The orthodox Hebrews of Greater Boston are to enter upon the Feast of the Tabernacles to-night, in accordance with the command for the completion of the solemn fast of Yom Kippur. This ceremony is an elaborate one, and is held in the homes of the adherents of the faith.

The celebration lasts eight days, although its observance is not intended to interfere with the business and every-day pursuits of the celebrants.

BUNCH OF ROSES IS SHIP'S CHRISTENING

BELFAST, Me., Oct. 3.—The four masted schooner Pendleton Sisters launched from the yard of Pendleton Brothers, yesterday, was christened with roses by Miss Effie B. Pendleton, one of the five sisters for whom she was named. The schooner is 207.8 feet long and 38.6 feet beam. She will be placed in the lumber trade, commanded by Captain Walter J. Small of Isleboro.

BROWN, SUBWAY SLAYER, IS HELD

Henry A. Brown, a negro, was arraigned in the Municipal Court before Judge Wentworth to-day, charged with the murder of another negro, Charles E. Queen, at the Park street station of the subway yesterday.

He pleaded not guilty. On request of Patrolman Hughes of the Legrange street station, who appeared against him, the case was continued until October 12. Brown was held without bail and was remanded to the Charles Street Jail.

The defendant, who was represented by A. P. Benjamin, was very nervous and his appearance showed a sleepless night. He was cool and collected when arrested yesterday, but the sight in a cell had destroyed his courage.

The examinations for the free scholarships in the vocal normal department of the New England Conservatory of Music began yesterday afternoon, with about 150 aspirants.

BUILT 1 SHIP; CHARGE FRAUD

New developments are expected to-day as the result of the arrest of William H. Reed, of Portland, Me., who has an office at No. 15 Exchange street.

Mr. Read was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

It is alleged that Reed obtained $500 from Thomas Sampson of the Adams House for a partnership in a shipbuilding business that never existed.

Reed denies that he used any fraudulent means in getting the money and says he will press matters both against the police and the man who had him arrested.

Mr. Reed went to Portland three years ago from Stonington, Maine, where he organized the Eastern Shipbuilding company, of which he was chief owner, established a small shipyard, built a small raking vessel and started to build a small schooner, which is still in the stocks unfinished. The plant and ship there are attached by workmen and creditors.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3.—Just to clean up the schedule the Plymouth Rocks and the Senators played a double-header to-day, and they could not have picked out nicer Fall weather for the hour of games.

The management decided to wind up the season here to-day, and the game scheduled for to-morrow was included in the double-header.

It made no difference to the visitors who won, as they were settled in last position in the race and could not get out by winning any more contests.

The Senators were equally solid in the west from the bottom place to the ladder, and the games were merely pastimes. Little Friendly strove to keep the interest up.

Chick Stahl and his crowd wanted to get the business over quickly, so as to catch an early train back to the Hub to make their two last appearances in his own city and then disband his crew.

NEW OWNERS FOR BOSTON NATIONALS

It's a safe, sane and conservative bet that the Boston National Club is at last on the eve of changing hands. Captain Fred Tenney, Roy Thomas of the Philadelphias and an unknown compose the syndicate that is undertaking the $275,000 deal.

The information, such as it is, was given out yesterday by President H. Soden Captain Tenney later verified the statement.

"Further details will be given out in a few days," he said.

Captain Tenney said that he had been negotiating for the club for some time and would hold a nice block of the stock. He thought the Boston public would be well pleased when they learned the names of the men who had purchased the club.

Director Conant was present, but was not anxious to be interviewed, and slipped away long before Tenney's statement was given out.

President Soden has been anxious to dispose of his baseball franchise for some time, and Director Conant, though willing to stick, was easily won over when people who meant business appeared on the scene. President Harry Pulliam was kept posted on the deal, and was pleased to find Philadelphia parties interested, as it practically strengthened his hands in the National League fight now on.

It was not made plain whether the new owners would assume an aggressive policy and spend money freely in hopes of strengthening the team for next season, or whether the old policy of the old owners.

The team of this year did not have sufficient players to enable it to make a good showing. Tenney says it will be the policy of the new owners to broaden in such matters and to carry a minimum of seventeen players next season and every effort will be made to present a team that will be as strong as it will be possible to secure.

LACY CRAWFORD NOT INTERESTED IN THE HUB NATIONALS

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, Sept. 3.—The Brooklyns, under the leadership of Patsy Donovan, appeared here for the first game of a series of three this afternoon. The Trolley Dodgers went hard after the battle, as they wanted to overtake the Reds for fifth place. A victory for the visitors, while the Portstown team not would put the Brooklyns just outside of the first division, and they would have the game with grim determination to beat the fencelifters.

Fennel came in for a good deal of attention to-day from the fans, because of the story published in the papers to the effect that he has just become a magnate. Fred didn't look as though he felt any richer than usual, and bore the distinction of his new office with dignity.

Gus Dorner was raded to pitch for the Bostons, while McIntyre was booked to twirl for the visitors.

JEFF AND JACK O'BRIEN MEET

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 3.—Tommy Burns whipped Jim Flynn by the knockout route. He took fifteen rounds to do it, and thanks to a blunder on Referee Robinson's part Flynn lost the fight twice in the last round. The Pueblo champion will now return to railroading, for he will not do. He was slow and pitifully awkward, leaving himself open to hundreds of punches which he might have avoided, and he was always a little behind the schedule with his haymaker rights and lefts.

Burns fought a fast fight, cutting out a great deal of his fancy footwork and touring into the fighting like a wild man.

The real end of the fight came late in the fourteenth round. Half a minute before the gong Burns whipped over a right cross which caught Flynn fairly on the point of the jaw. Jim's knees sagged and his hands went down. For the first time in the fight he was really hurt. Burns knew he had his man going, and putting his left hand against Flynn's face he pushed him away. Full arm's length and whipped another right over. Flynn staggered but kept on his feet. For a moment Burns bombarded Flynn's chin with full arm punches, but not one of them had enough steam behind it to send the groggy man to the floor.

The minute's rest did Flynn good. He was dazed when he came from his corner. Burns rushed him into a neutral corner and landed another right across on the chin. Flynn went down on his back-stepped there for five seconds, dragged himself to his knees, and in this position was counted out. He rose after the tenth second.

Referee Robinson made a move to catch Burns' elbow and stop the fight, but changed his mind, and, stepping aside, allowed Burns to continue hitting. Flynn was all in, and soon went down for the second time. He rose again and found his feet, staggering into the centre of the ring. Though ready to crawl he was still game, and made one or two wild attempts to swing lustily going down without a hit. The second Burns bombarded Flynn's face to the tune of a dozen punches. Robinson forced him to get up again, and Burns tore in for the last time. One more punch, which seemed to land high on the side of the head, and Flynn hit the floor face downward. Vaughn counted through the ropes and the fight was over.

For the first time in Los Angeles Tommy Burns elected to put up a fast, rough fight. He soon found that Flynn could land hit, and after that he was all over the Pueblo demon. He put his left arm around Burns's neck in clinches and hung on until the referee tore the men apart. Burns seemed to like this head to head work, for Flynn left his chin wide open, and Tommy proceed him continually with letting right uppercuts which jarred the Pueblo fireman. Both men were well marked up. Flynn split Burns's right eyebrow, blacked his right eye and kept him bleeding from the mouth. Burns hammered Flynn's nose out of shape and cut him about the mouth.

A great crowd, including several celebrities, turned out to see the fight. Jeff Jeffries was present in a front seat, and Jack Dempsey was ringside. After much persuasion Jeffries was induced to enter the ring, and as soon as the big fellow got one foot through the rope O'Brien dove through from the other corner. The two met in the centre and shook hands. After previous introductions Mr. O'Brien made a smooth little speech. He wound up with the following nice little compliment to Jeffries:

"The newspapers of the country have said that I was anxious to meet Mr. Jeffries in the ring, but have met him in the ring to-night and I want to say that this is the only way I want to meet him there."

Jeffries showed himself to be something of a native peddler himself in his own speech, which followed:

"I can say that I thank O'Brien for his compliment."

Burns's seconds claim that he broke his left hand squarely in two in his fight with Flynn. It seems to be the correct thing to break bones nowadays.

CHELSEA FIGHT FANS WRATHY AT DECISION

One of the most unfair decisions ever rendered in the Lincoln A. C. ring by Chelsea fight club, came last night when the result of the Matty Baldwin-Chester Goodwin bout was announced as given by Referee Maffit Flaherty. Baldwin should have been adjudged the winner, for there was no question that he was Goodwin's way or as he outfought the Chelsea boy by thirteen of the fifteen rounds. He was a 10 to 7 favorite and was played freely by Baldwin thought that he was robbed of a victory and so expressed himself after the bout was over, and there were plenty who agreed with him.

More electric fans will be needed in the club to dissipate the odor caused by calling a draw in such an easy decision to pick as last night, as any blindfold person would have said there was only one way to rule the award and that in favor of Baldwin.

Never Fought Better.

The Bunker Hill boy never fought better or with more speed and few can get away from Matty when he is travelling at his best, as he was against Goodwin.

Nothing could stop him. Not even the Goodwin's favorite left jabs or he was determined to reach Goodwin and kept constantly rushing in to close quarters to batter his opponent down by doing damaging work on his body and in clinches. He and Goodwin almost tied in knots trying to evade his body hammering, but Goodwin could not escape the frame racking Matty had on tap and his mauling was considerably marked up where Matty sunk his fists into the body frame.

Baldwin simply lathered Goodwin with body clouts, eating him up in spots of distress from the steamy hooks buried on the wind region.

Matty was there to hammer Goodwin into a state of submission by settling his body and then trying to shoot over his right when he got to the proper stage of operations. He nearly accomplished his object as he caught Goodwin several powerful swings on the jaw which sent the Chelsea boy reeling across the ring.

Willing to Swap Punches.

What cleverness Goodwin ever possessed was not in evidence as he was made to look foolish on several occasions by his wild lunges, and at laughing he was no match for the little tiger from Charlestown, who was always willing to swap punches, but Goodwin shut up like a wild hard to clinches. He could not stop Matty from doing some telling execution at close quarters and he took some severe jolting in the body which had a weakening effect. Matty took every chance to land and when Goodwin embraced him too warmly and he had a hand free, he smashed on the kidneys, raising a lump on Goodwin's backbone as big as an egg.

Baldwin's aggressive milling was not to Goodwin's liking and he was at a disadvantage at the straight-away mixing, but in order, but it is doubtful if he could have had a show with Baldwin as well as the rate the Charlestown slugger sloughed the Bunker Hill fairly all over the ring Goodwin had to offer. His lips were considerably swollen at the finish where Goodwin had stabbed him, but he had to take them in order to fasten his hooks on the body, but they never stopped him from boring in, and the body racking had telling effect. Goodwin was miscuing continually with wide full arm swings and was decidedly off his mark in landing.

Dazed His Rival.

Goodwin has always been noted for his awkwardness in the ring and his style has worried many boys as it did Baldwin, who never got a lick clearly almost to reach Goodwin's jaw. Several times Matty landed, facing his rival, and during Goodwin completely around from the force of his punches; while on different occasions Baldwin staggered Goodwin for the ropes by swinging one hand and then the other to the head.

Fred Bradley was put out in the third round by Johnny Carroll of Brooklyn by the latter's new style and the end came suddenly when Bradley got a lefty almost on his chin. Carroll picked off some nice wells with his left and was right at home at a standoff fight. When Bradley pushed in and got his short arm scoring Carroll looked bad, but in the third round Bradley failed to close in and he rewarded his opponent with some hooks made a good impression by doing away with Carley Williams in the youngster, beating him in a couple of rounds.

BONNIE WAY WON RACE AT BROCKTON

Special to the Boston American.

FAIR GROUNDS, Brockton, Oct. 3.—Much to the surprise of the talent, Aquin met his Waterloo in the two-year-old race this forenoon, he having been counted the superior of the four starters. His conqueror was Bonnie Way, owned by C. W. Lesell of Whitesville and driven by A. Johnson of this city.

The winner is of exceptional promise and is gaited a whole lot like her half sister, Totara, 2:09¾. Barring accidents she is bound to make a name for herself on the turf.

Bonnie Way was bred at the Forbes farm in Milton and was sired by Peter the Great, 2:07¼, out of Nowaday, 2:14¾, dam of Totara, by Lookaway, 2:22¼.

The racing program in the other forenoon events dragged on that at noon only three heats had been decided in the 2:21 trot, in which Gracie Barron, the Brighton owned mare, won the second and third heats in 2:19¾ and 2:18¾.

The initial heat was taken by Casseres in 2:21¾. There were six starters.

NO YACHT RACE NEXT SUMMER

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Sir Thomas Lipton, Colonel Nelli and John Westwood, the secretary of Sir Thomas, left for Chicago last night. During the afternoon Sir Thomas was the guest of Robert E. Tod, N. Y. Y. C., owner of the schooner yacht Tidelon, on an automobile trip. The impression received by Sir Thomas during the short time that he has been here is that the New York Yacht Club, as a club, is not anxious to receive a challenge for the cup races in 1907 under the new rule. As Sir Thomas will not challenge under the old one, the inference is there will be no match made for next Summer.

VANDERBILT BEATEN IN A TRIAL SPIN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Harry Payne Whitney beat William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., to-day by four lengths in a third of speed during a practice spin in their racing cars near Garden City, L. I. Both Mr. Vanderbilt and Mr. Whitney denied that they had had a real race along the stretch of turnpike near Garden City, but people who were abroad at daybreak declared that they had witnessed as thrilling a race as even the match race scheduled for Friday between the two young millionaires over the cup course promises to be.

According to the people who say they saw the race Foxhall Keene acted as referee. The dash was made along a straight stretch of finely oiled road, and Whitney's 110-horsepower Richard-Brasier car gradually pulled ahead of the 90-horsepower Mercedes, and finished with four lengths of daylight between them.

Willie Carlisle was granted permission to-day to enter his 200 horsepower Christie car for the Vanderbilt cup race on Saturday.

The Christie car has greater potentiality than any other entered for the contest. The decision of the board of racing commissioners of the Vanderbilt cup race admitting the Christie car, having a greater horsepower than any other machine in the world, so far as known, followed his announcement that he had gotten it into shape again after the accident which befell it in one of the elimination race a week ago last Saturday.

Several days before the elimination race Carlisle, who was trying out the car, ran into a telegraph pole and smashed the machine into what looked like scrap iron. There was nothing left intact out the motor.

GLIDDEN TOURISTS WILL GET MEDALS ON FRIDAY

BY J. C. KERRISON.

H. C. Nickerson, the man who strewed confetti in the famous A. A. A. run from Pittsburg some three or four years ago, has collected more or less fame by being arrested in Erie, Pa., on the charge of litering the streets, going together in his run as the guest of W. S. Maguire. Mr. Nickerson paid a visit to this city while enroute to Portland, Me., there to establish a local branch of the Pierce Company. "Nick" comes direct from the Pierce factory at Buffalo and brings the interesting information that all Pierce cars for 1907 will be equipped with the Simms-Bosch high tension magneto as part of their regular equipment. The company will also put on a handsome touring a speed of something like sixty miles an hour, which car will meet the demands of those who see "eye to eye with speed."

The medals for the clean score men in the Glidden Tour will be distributed on Friday by Charles J. Glidden at the Waldorf-Astoria to the drivers or their representatives who are to receive them. The medal is a massive affair of gold with very simple but beautiful lines. It contains on the obverse a reproduction of the Glidden Trophy and the words "Glidden Trophy." On the reverse the medal contains in addition to the name of the driver the following inscription: "Perfect score automobile touring contest for Glidden Trophy 1906, conducted by American Automobile Association."

There are twelve of these medals. Mr. Glidden's offer to Pierce Pierce, who scored more men receive one inasmuch as he retains the custody of the trophy ready for another year, under the rules of the competition.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 3.—Williams lined up against the Amherst Agricultural College this afternoon on Weston Field in the first game of the year here. Great interest was aroused, as it was the first opportunity the students had to watch the new rules work.

During the intermission the freshmen in fantastic costumes held their parade.

HARVARD WILL MEET BOWDOIN KICKERS

The Line-up:

HARVARD.	BOWDOIN.
Bonham, l. e.	r. e., Drummond
Bell, l. t.	r. t., Bigelow
Lee, l. g.	r. g., Ingalls
Hurlbut, c.	c., Dane
Kenborg, r. g.	l. g., Sexton

Gardner, l. h. b.	l. h. b., Lee or Gingrass
Campbell, r. h. b.	r. h. b., Blanchard
Bingham, f. b.	f. b., Blanchard

The Harvard football team plays its second game of the season against Bowdoin on Soldiers Field this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Bowdoin has never been a dangerous opponent of the Crimson team, but they are very light and fast, which, together with the new rules, will favor them decidedly. Baraham will play left end for Harvard in place of Sennard, who slightly sprained his ankle in the Williams game last Saturday. Bury will line up for the first time this season, as also will Starr, who has been playing a fast game in practice.

Yesterday the men were given one-half hour of practice following the open practice. The forward pass and outside kicking were practiced. The ends and linemen had practice in starts. Coaches Newhall, Haughton, Bell and Taylor did some drop kicking, after which Coach Hall delivered a goal from the field during the scrimmage.

Captain Eus Dowd issued a call for more weighty candidates yesterday.

NEW FALL STYLES IN SHIRT WAISTS

Dainty Designs in Garments That Ought to Delight the Heart of Every Woman Because of Their Neat Cut and Elegant Though Simple Appearance

Suggestions That the Home Dressmaker Will Find Exceedingly Well Suited to Her Purpose and Easy to Reproduce in Many Kinds of Material

Dainty Theatre Waist

A DAINTY shirtwaist is the envy of every woman. Though there are innumerable styles to choose from, it is hard to find what just suits; that is, one not too elaborate and yet made of such material, and in a simple and pretty design that it will be both inexpensive and becoming. These few suggestions may help.

This first blouse is made of blue gray taffeta, the body laid in close, flat tucks. The yoke is of Irish lace, also the little elbow puffs.

A circular collar is trimmed with bands of a darker shade of cord. The cord forms little loops over the narrow ruffle and on the wide box pleats under which the waist fastens.

For a dainty theatre waist the centre model is a good one. It is made of cream batiste and trimmed with rows of Irish lace medallions. The yoke is of Irish all-over lace.

The third design is pretty in cloth, linen or silk. It is laid in box pleats, with a passementerie appliqued in heavy silk. Edging the little yoke is a piping and bands of silk cord. The yoke is made of tucked batiste and lace; also the cuffs and little puffed undersleeves.

LLANFAIRPWLLGWYNGYLLGOGERYCHWYRNDROBWLL-LLANDISILIOGOGOGOCH.

This is not a puzzle of any kind, but the heading above is the name of a Welsh parish on the Anglesey side of Menai Bridge, and is in everyday use, and undoubtedly is the longest name in village, town, or city in the world. The natives call the place Llanfair, but as there are other Llanfairs in Wales, some description has to be added in postal addresses, and that is usually done by the addition of the name of the church, which is the most striking feature in the village. The name, which is pronounced Hlan-vire-pool-gwin-gill-go-ger-ee-hoo-ern-drob-ooll-hlan-dis-il-eo-go-go-goch, refers to the rapid whirlpool, and to St. Distilo Church near a red cave.

CORN MEAL BANNOCK

ONE cupful corn meal, one tablespoon sugar, pinch of salt. Scald this with one cupful boiling water, and when cool add one cupful sweet milk, two or three eggs (as you have them) and one teaspoon of baking powder. Eggs must be well beaten. Bake half an hour in buttered tin and serve in the dish.

CARRIE ALLEN REED.
No. 74 Milt street, New Bedford.

HARRISON CAKE

ONE cup butter, one cup sugar, one cup molasses, one cup milk, one cup raisins, one teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and powdered cloves, four cups sifted flour. Bake in a moderate oven thirty to forty-five minutes. This makes two large loaves.

MISS FLORENCE K. MASON.
P. O. Box 284, Groton.

SPICED JELLY.

ONE peck crabapples, three pints water, three pints vinegar, one-fourth mixed spices. Boil all together as for plain jelly and strain. Use pint of juice to scant pound of sugar. This is excellent with meats.

MISS C. L. DAVIS.
No. 4 Alpine street, Roxbury.

CANNED BAKED APPLES

FILL a large benapot with sour apples, pared, quartered and cored. Put over them half cup sugar for a quart of apples; add one cup water, one teaspoon (level) whole cloves and about two sticks cinnamon, broken up, cover closely and bake four to six hours in moderate oven. When red take out apples and put into hot glass jars, bring the syrup to a boil and fill jars to overflowing and seal.

For hard Winter pears follow same directions, only cutting the pears in half after paring.

MRS. BERNARD S. LEE.
No. 162B Rantoul street, Beverly.

PEPPER RELISH.

TWO quarts green tomatoes, one quart cucumbers, one quart of green peppers, one pint of onions. Chop ingredients fine, add one-half cup of salt, mix well and let stand over night and drain. Pack in jars or bottles; cover well with cold vinegar. Will be ready for use in three weeks.

MRS. H. B. SWEET.

HOW OLD IS JANE?

Here Is a Problem That Puzzled the Court—See if You Can Solve It.

ONE of the city judges, the other day, encountered a problem that is still puzzling him. Among the witnesses in a case was a woman who had been called to tell of a quarrel which led up to a hair-pulling affair between two of her neighbors in a big tenement house.

She took the stand and was sworn, and counsel for the defendant asked her name.

"Jane Symonds," she answered.

"How old are you?" asked the lawyer.

"Well," responded the witness, "I am the oldest of the family. There are fifteen of us, and there is just a year and a half exactly between the birthdays. I am just eight times the age of my little sister, Eva, who is the youngest of the family. You can figure it out for yourself."

The Court and the lawyers are still figuring. See if you can make it out, and if you think your answer is correct send it to PUZZLE EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

ANOTHER ANSWER

JANE is twenty-two and a half years old, leaving her sister Eva two years and nine months old.

MR. SWENSON.
No. 17A Merton street, Somerville.

PAST MIDDLE LIFE

I HAVE come to the conclusion that Jane Symonds is fifty-six years old.

DONALD F. FLAVIN.
Portland, Me.

ALGEBRA, AGAIN

LET x = the youngest sister's age and $8x$ = Jane's age. Since there was $22\frac{1}{2}$ years difference in their ages, Jane's age also $= 22\frac{1}{2}+x$, therefore $8x=22\frac{1}{2}+x$; $7x=22\frac{1}{2}$, $x=3.14$, and the youngest sister's age is 3 years 72 days and 3 hours.

H. S. TAMBLYN.
Sharon.

SHE'S OVER 25

FROM the picture of Miss Jane Symonds, I should say she was 25 years, 8 months, and, calling thirty days a month, 17 1-2 days old. Her youngest sister, Eva, would be 2 years 2 months and 17 1-2 days old.

GORDON KENDRICK.
East Milton.

DOWN TO SECONDS

I SAY that Jane is twenty-five years eight months, seventeen days, three hours, twenty-five minutes, forty-two and fifty-sixth seconds, allowing fifteen children and a year and a half between each, unless triplets.

M. J. M.
No. 25 Liverpool street, East Boston.

GROWING OLDER

JANE SYMONDS is twenty-six years old, and Eva is three years and 3 months.

Sensible Hints for Busy Housewives

IF you have no celery on hand when flavoring a soup use a small quantity of celery seed. Often there will be plenty of celery seed and other spices in the pantry when a few sprays of something fresh cannot be obtained.

* * *

Grease stains on a kitchen floor are difficult to remove by ordinary means, but they will generally come out with a hot solution of potash. If one application is not enough, use a second or even a third. Sometimes the solution, if the wood is very white, will leave a yellowish stain. To avoid this mix some lime with the solution until a thick paste is formed. Let the paste remain on the floor at least twelve hours. It is better to use a weak solution of sal soda and fuller's earth on very nice floors.

* * *

All puddings that should be smooth and creamy, such as custard, rice and tapioca, ought to bake or steam slowly. If they need not be an expensive cream and be cooked rapidly they are apt to curdle.

* * *

In making down pillows a good way to prevent the down working through the cloth is to go over the inside of the case with an iron rubbed well with beeswax each time it is applied to the cloth.

* * *

It is not generally known that wringing out a cloth in hot water, and wiping the furniture before putting on furniture cream will result in a very high polish, and will not finger mark.

* * *

Don't attempt to clean picture frames covered with gold-leaf, as the finest and most beautiful of all gold frames are. You can tell them by the way the gold, as you look at it closely, seems laid on, here and there curling over so slightly away from the frame. Any sort of cleaning, except the most casual dusting, is bound to make the gold scale off in unsightly fashion.

* * *

Flies are such a trouble in hot weather that an old country method of controlling them is worthy a trial in the kitchens of our flats, apartments and dwelling houses wherever they may be. A large bunch of feathery asparagus is tied and fastened near the ceiling, and to this haven in preference to culinary dainties the disturbing flies are said to go in large numbers. It need not be an expensive remedy, and is vouched for by more than one experienced old country housekeeper.

TO REMOVE SPLINTERS

TO remove a splinter, fill a bottle half way full of boiling water, put the injured part on the mouth of the bottle, and just press on it a little. In a few minutes this will extract the splinter, and reduce inflammation, if there is any.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal-Examiner

THE two detectives looked at each other, keenly disappointed.

"Someone's got wind of it, and has been to warn our man!" one of them exclaimed.

"That motor car that went past us at such a rate—not much doubt who was in it! This Grantham, on his way to Park Hill to warn Herries. Herries has bolted!"

The speaker ran to a time table posted up on a board; he ran his finger down the list of railway stations till he came to Park Hill. There he saw that a fast train left Park Hill for New York some two minutes after the down train.

"He's gone back by that train—"

The man raced off to the telegraph office.

Any chance of getting a wire through to New York before the express gets in?" demanded the man in plain clothes.

"Not much chance," said the clerk; "the express is due in two minutes—and you won't get the message delivered to some one on the platform, I suppose? There's not much time, is there? Where's the message?"

The detective was already hurriedly scribbling it. His man would be waiting at the station in case of a message coming; he might get it in time.

CHAPTER CXX.

Collecting Evidence

AT Police Headquarters, to which Olga Ivanoff was conveyed by cab from the Grand Central, she was handed over to a matron to be taken to the cell, but after being told that on the following morning she would be brought before a magistrate.

The beautiful suffering face might have been carved from marble as the girl was led out of Jim's sight; the boy watched the piteous white face with a gulping sob in his throat; and as she disappeared he turned down, sobbing as though his heart would break.

"Now, my boy, don't distress yourself so much over this; it won't do any good, you know," said a detective kindly—a man with a pleasant, jovial face. "You're going along home with me to-night to play with my kids—bless you, I've got half a dozen of 'em at home. Don't be afraid; no harm's coming to you—"

"It was thinking of her," said Jim miserably.

"She's been kind to you, hasn't she?"

"Kind! Why, the name of her is—" cried Jim. "And it ain't her done this murder! I know who it was—it was the Farmer! I took that stiletto from Rumfit's—"

An idea struck the man in plain clothes, who had the appearance of belonging to a superior class to the others present—evidently a person of some importance—given a little encouragement and the boy mentioned Rumfit, as though he was not altogether unacquainted with the name.

"You may take it straight, my boy, that if she hasn't done it, no harm will come to her. Now, I'm going to be your friend, and I'm going to show you some things that will interest you. Food of looking at dreams and such, same as all boys, aren't you, Jim?"

Jim nodded. He detected the kindly note in the officer's voice and felt grateful for it, though just then he was feeling too miserable to be much interested in anything.

He could only think of Olga's white, despairing face as she was led to the cell where they would lock her up.

"She is a queer thing now, isn't it?" said the inspector, producing for Jim a inspection an old horse pistol. "Pull the trigger, if you like; it isn't loaded"—on invitation which at any other time would have filled Jim with delight.

He handled it listlessly, but the inspector affected not to notice Jim's lack of interest.

He produced several odd things for Jim to look at—curious weapons of various kinds, a walking stick with a queer, carved head—all of them, had Jim but known it, weapons with a history; a fact which accounted for their presence in this police station.

Jim looked at one and all inattentively, pausing to ask questions about Olga—where she would be taken to-morrow, when would she be tried.

But the boy's utter want of interest in these curiosities did not in the least lessen the man's kind zeal; he perhaps was not without some diverse motive in view.

"There's a queer-looking thing here I'll show you, Jim."

Jim Gives Proof

The officer had opened a drawer underneath the nest of pigeonholes behind the long mahogany desk, where the police sergeant sat; in the drawer, had Jim been near enough, he might have caught a glimpse of a necklace of spillikans, with one or two of the stones missing and the setting crushed as though an angry foot had stamped on it.

From this drawer the man took out a short stiletto, with a red stone set at the end of the hilt, and held it out before Jim, who remarked with the utmost care lessness:

"Looks rather like, this isn't it, Jim?" —at the sight of that murderous weapon, for the first time Jim's interest was roused. His eyes widened, and he cried excitedly:

"Why, but—that is the dagger the Farmer took from Rumfit's shop! I'd know it anywhere!"

The inspector and the man who had previously shown an interest at the mention of Rumfit's name exchanged a quick glance.

The inspector affected to laugh.

"That's a big order, my boy, to talk like that!" he said, still holding the stiletto. "How do you know there aren't hundreds identical with this sold in a year?"

"Well, I only know it's just like the one the Farmer took, anyway," said Jim.

Then, as a sudden thought struck him, he cried excitedly, pointing to the weapon in the man's hand:

"There's the one as the Farmer took, you'll find a bit nicked out just under the thin string of gut—just between the handle and the blade!"

Again the inspector and the other man exchanged an almost imperceptible glance.

It was impossible, from the manner in which the inspector had laid the weapon flat, that the boy could have caught sight of it; but under the guard of the weapon was just such a mark as Jim had described.

"You see, one day when I thought old Rumfit wouldn't know nothin' about it," explained the boy, eagerly, "I took them two stilettos out to show Clubfoot Sam—he was a chum of mine, Sam was—an' we got fooling with 'em, and made goodness like, and while we was larkin' one edge got a bit chipped—an' I was afterwards that it was the one the Farmer took."

The inspector went up to the man in plain clothes, who had been listening to Jim's narration with a keener interest than the boy suspected.

The two men talked together for a few minutes in tones too low for Jim to catch what was said. Then the inspector turned to the boy.

"You come up to town to-day without having any leave, Jim, didn't you?" he asked.

"Yes, she was just getting it ready when the two cops come and took 'er."

"Well, you've been a good boy and given us some information that may prove useful in this case, so it would be too bad to let you be deprived of your dinner. You come along with me, Jim, and we'll see if we can't find a place handy where we can get a bite or two of something."

So Jim found himself accompanying the inspector to a restaurant not far from the police station, and there the man of law won Jim's heart by the way he pressed him to choose what he most fancied from the bill of fare. The boy, in spite of his depression of spirit on Olga's account, found that he had a very sharp appetite, and was only too ready to avail himself of the invitation.

He scanned the bill of fare deliberately, with a little secret feeling of importance, while his companion exchanged pleasantries with the waitress, who seemed to know him well.

Jim was quite surprised.

He had never before been brought into contact with "the force," and had imbibed from the public's establishment that the police were his natural enemies; he was surprised to find how pleasant and kindly they could be.

Confidences

"Now, I want you to tell me how it was you came to live with the Rumfits, Jim," said the inspector, as a steaming plate of meat and vegetables, swimming in gravy, was placed before him.

"Take your time telling me, you know, and enjoy your dinner. I'm interested, I've heard of Rumfit."

Jim told his new acquaintance the story with reservations. For instance, he carefully left out all mention of the diamond known as the "Mirror of the Moon." To have referred to that, he realized, would have been to implicate Farmer; it would no doubt lead to his arrest, and after Jarman's kindness to him, Jim's sense of loyalty would not let him risk getting the man into trouble.

But the inspector of Olga Vail having fallen into the hands of the Rumfits, and quite forgetting that he might be implicating John Herries—how he had been the lover of a woman from the imprisoned girl and had subsequently helped Herries to escape her,

He went on to explain how Marr had discovered his share of Olga's escape, and, nevertheless by Marr's threats, he had skipped.

"And I don't wonder you did, either," remarked the inspector. "Enjoying your dinner, my boy?"

"Rather, sir; thank you—"

"That's right. Eat as much as you can; you and I are going out on a little matter of business presently."

"I believe you're a plucky lad, who would do anything for that poor woman in the cells—"

"Wouldn't I just!" cried Jim, fervently. "You try me!"

TO BE CONTINUED.

Fashion Fancies Seen in the Shops

GUESSALINE promises to be one of the favorite silks for evening wear—messaline softer and more pliable than crepe, and yards and yards of it crammed into an apparently simple little gown.

* * *

When it is of messaline or of some one of the many members of the messaline family, the gown's pretty apt to be of a plain tint. But the stranger tints that are brought out are more wonderful than ever before, some of them with a strange pearly quality about them.

* * *

Suppleness still is the ruling characteristic of materials of every description.

Only in taffeta do they come in much stiffness—there's nothing in the silk world like taffeta for showing them off at their best.

* * *

Paris is insisting upon pompadour silks, and has sent over exquisite petticoats of flowered silk trimmed in elaborate yet delicate ways with lace. Indeed, little pointed bodices, cut low and without sleeves, are made to go with them and complete the slip. For slips they are, and slips that did fall to the ground rather than ever, and yards and yards of it crammed into an apparently simple little gown.

* * *

Just how much more material is to be conzed into gowns is one of the many questions that are bothering the heads of dress at present—those of us, at least, who have the feminine gender. How skirts are to be made fuller at the hem is another of these problems, as fascinating to solve as a Chinese puzzle, and as intricate.

It's to be a season of rather more somber tones, so the outlook is at present.

And browns, they say, stubbornly refuses to yield first place, although it has really enjoyed more than its fair share of popularity these past two or three years.

But the golden browns are not so good as they were. The duller leaf browns, the chestnut—just the loveliest dark tone with a hint of red in it—warm depths, and the deep, rich browns are coming into pronounced favor.

Pimples, Blackheads, Blotchy Skin

WHAT a world of humiliation is expressed in these words! If you are so unfortunate as to have a pimply, blotchy face, which is continually getting worse instead of better, call on or write to

John H. Woodbury Dermatological Institute,
(Dept. E.) 9d Winter St., Boston.

to choose what he most fancied from the bill of fare. The boy, in spite of his depression of spirit on Olga's account, found that he had a very sharp appetite, and was only too ready to avail himself of the invitation.

He scanned the bill of fare deliberately, with a little secret feeling of importance, while his companion exchanged pleasantries with the waitress, who seemed to know him well.

Jim was quite surprised.

He had never before been brought into contact with "the force," and had imbibed from the public's establishment that the police were his natural enemies; he was surprised to find how pleasant and kindly they could be.

Confidences

"Now, I want you to tell me how it was you came to live with the Rumfits, Jim," said the inspector, as a steaming plate of meat and vegetables, swimming in gravy, was placed before him.

"Take your time telling me, you know, and enjoy your dinner. I'm interested, I've heard of Rumfit."

Jim told his new acquaintance the story with reservations. For instance, he carefully left out all mention of the diamond known as the "Mirror of the Moon." To have referred to that, he realized, would have been to implicate Farmer; it would no doubt lead to his arrest, and after Jarman's kindness to him, Jim's sense of loyalty would not let him risk getting the man into trouble.

But the inspector of Olga Vail having fallen into the hands of the Rumfits, and quite forgetting that he might be implicating John Herries—how he had been the lover of a woman from the imprisoned girl and had subsequently helped Herries to escape her,

He went on to explain how Marr had discovered his share of Olga's escape, and, nevertheless by Marr's threats, he had skipped.

"And I don't wonder you did, either," remarked the inspector. "Enjoying your dinner, my boy?"

"Rather, sir; thank you—"

"That's right. Eat as much as you can; you and I are going out on a little matter of business presently.

"I believe you're a plucky lad, who would do anything for that poor woman in the cells—"

"Wouldn't I just!" cried Jim, fervently. "You try me!"

Fashion Fancies Seen in the Shops

GUESSALINE promises to be one of the favorite silks for evening wear—messaline softer and more pliable than crepe, and yards and yards of it crammed into an apparently simple little gown.

* * *

When it is of messaline or of some one of the many members of the messaline family, the gown's pretty apt to be of a plain tint. But the stranger tints that are brought out are more wonderful than ever before, some of them with a strange pearly quality about them.

* * *

Suppleness still is the ruling characteristic of materials of every description.

Only in taffeta do they come in much stiffness—there's nothing in the silk world like taffeta for showing them off at their best.

* * *

Paris is insisting upon pompadour silks, and has sent over exquisite petticoats of flowered silk trimmed in elaborate yet delicate ways with lace. Indeed, little pointed bodices, cut low and without sleeves, are made to go with them and complete the slip. For slips they are, and slips that did fall to the ground rather than ever, and yards and yards of it crammed into an apparently simple little gown.

* * *

Just how much more material is to be conzed into gowns is one of the many questions that are bothering the heads of dress at present—those of us, at least, who have the feminine gender. How skirts are to be made fuller at the hem is another of these problems, as fascinating to solve as a Chinese puzzle, and as intricate.

It's to be a season of rather more somber tones, so the outlook is at present.

And browns, they say, stubbornly refuses to yield first place, although it has really enjoyed more than its fair share of popularity these past two or three years.

But the golden browns are not so good as they were. The duller leaf browns, the chestnut—just the loveliest dark tone with a hint of red in it—warm depths, and the deep, rich browns are coming into pronounced favor.

LOSES $867 TO 'CHANCE FRIEND'

When Roy Sanborn, a farmer of Bangor, Me., woke up in a Court street hotel today he found that he was minus a $200 solid gold watch and $567 in money which he had when he went to bed last night. A "chance acquaintance" annexed himself to his patron's roll.

Sanborn told the police to-day that he came down from Maine yesterday, wandered down into Court street late last night and met a man with whom he went to the hotel.

Sanborn could not tell much about his companion's appearance, but he knew the money and watch returned right away, he said, or he'll make trouble.

You Can Do What the Astors Did—If You Have Judgment

Real Estate Investment Now Begins All Over Again. The Greatest Opportunities in the World's History Are Before You

THE problem of almost every human being—especially of the father and the mother—is this:

HOW CAN I PROVIDE FOR THE FUTURE, HOW CAN I FREE MYSELF FROM THE UNCERTAINTY AND DREAD THAT FACE ME AS I LOOK TOWARD OLD AGE?

Some days ago we talked with our readers about real estate investments.

To-day we take up this subject again.

Rapid transit changes with each great invention of the human mind.

In the days of the stage coach civilization was hampered because the workman COULD NOT LIVE FAR FROM HIS WORK.

In the days of horse cars modern Boston became possible because the worker could be far from home—relatively speaking—and yet get to his business.

The stage coach has gone by, the steam railroad car, so far as municipal transit is concerned, has gone by, and the horse car is as obsolete as the mastodon.

We face a new era in transportation. And those that read this editorial intelligently may do for themselves by real estate investments what was done in the past by the ancestors of those that live comfortably and without effort now.

The desire of this newspaper is to serve those that read it, and do something to repay the kindness, friendship and support which we owe them.

We invite all of our saving, self-denying, far-seeing readers to keep their minds on REAL ESTATE at present.

All kinds of opportunities are offered to the people of this city.

Men are going to buy real estate BY THE ACRE and sell it by the lot, AND BITTERLY REPROACH THEMSELVES THAT THEY EVER SOLD IT AT ALL.

The man who advertises a lot to-day and thinks he is getting twice what it is worth IS ALMOST INVARIABLY GETTING LESS THAN A QUARTER OF ITS VALUE TEN YEARS FROM NOW.

We cannot advise our readers as to INDIVIDUAL investments or as to the merits of this opportunity or the other.

BUT WE DO, MOST SINCERELY, ADVISE EVERY READER, WITH A LITTLE MONEY TO INVEST, TO THINK ABOUT REAL ESTATE POSSIBILITIES.

Use your judgment, think in what DIRECTION population is going, ask yourselves WHERE people will want to live, AND WHY THEY WILL WANT TO LIVE THERE.

Think it over carefully, be cautious, LOOK AT THE LAND BEFORE YOU BUY, never invest more than you can SURELY pay. Buy your land to keep it. Then invest to the best of your ability.

Some time ago, in a Sunday edition of the BOSTON AMERICAN, WHICH IS THE BEST MEDIUM IN THE WORLD FOR REAL ESTATE ANNOUNCEMENTS, there appeared an advertisement as to lots, several hundred of them, to be sold in Winthrop.

Of course we knew nothing about the individual merits of this sale.

But after it was over we learned from the vendor that the sale had been extraordinary in the number of those that attended it, and in the number of individual bidders for and buyers of lots.

We do not know what the men who bought those lots will do with the land. Some of them will hold on for a little while and then sell at a slight advance—tempted by a little profit.

Others will sell a little later, taking a bigger profit.

This we say with the utmost confidence and certainty. Sooner or later every inch of land sold at that sale will be covered with houses.

Every inch of ground, sooner or later, will be worth as much as a foot of the ground was at that auction sale. And twenty years from now, or ten years from now, there will be somebody saying: "I happened to see an advertisement in a newspaper and I bought a lot for $1.500 that I have just sold for $15,000."

Don't imagine that this is a dream—it has happened over and over in Boston, and it will happen over and over again.

We believe that THOSE WHO BUY WITH ANY JUDGMENT AT ALL during the present rapid transit development will make a great deal of money and will be deeply grateful to the BOSTON AMERICAN for having drawn them in that direction.

You can buy FARMS now where you won't be able to buy LOTS when you have gray hair.

We give you no advice as to sales or localities, but we do say this: WATCH REAL ESTATE SALES, USE YOUR IMAGINATION, MAKE UP YOUR MIND WHERE THE PEOPLE ARE GOING, WHERE HOMES AND STORES WILL BE IN DEMAND—THEN INVEST YOUR MONEY.

Little Editorials from the People

WANTS DEMOCRATS TO NAME BROWN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Through the valuable medium of the AMERICAN I wish to offer a few words of advice to the coming Democratic State Convention, on the question of choice in the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor.

My interest in real democratic principles, and my belief that it will be through the agency of the Democratic party that these principles will secure effective expression and legislative endorsement will, I think, be sufficient excuse for the liberty I take in urging upon you the wisdom of selecting E. Gerry Brown.

There is manifestly among the best friends of democracy that the time is now ripe, and the best opportunity now offers for making it impossible any longer for the tools and agents of special privileges to use the Democratic party either as decoy duck, buffer or money.

The advice given by Mr. Quincy to our worthy candidate for chief executive "to go and get a political reputation" would be even less appropriate if offered to Mr. Brown.

For if long, honorable, self-sacrificing service in the cause of reform ever entitled a man to recognition and promotion, the gentleman I name is most worthy of the honor. When the great Democratic party was wandering in the wilderness of doubt and confusion, his voice consistently called them back to "Jeffersonian principles;" and when the "wolves in sheeps' clothing" with the alluring cry of "safety and sanity" delivered the party into the hands of the Philistines, he sounded a warning of danger; and for over twenty years he has been keeping alive the spirit of patriotism, that now, like a prairie fire, is burning away the dry stubble of indifference, and which will prepare the political soil for the beautiful and righteous laws.

Mr. Brown is a moral and intellectual leader, and possesses all the qualifications necessary for progressive statesmanship; his long experience working at the bench, his long and active service in the ranks of organized labor, combined with his well-stored mind and deep sympathy with the needs of our common humanity, all contribute to give him a broad view of future needs along the line of legislative effort.

Now is the grandest opportunity for the Democratic leaders to prove that they have political sagacity and platform honesty by selecting from the rank of organized labor their most faithful, intellectual and intelligent representative. Yours very respectfully, EDWARD BARKER.

Brockton.

HITS THE TRUSTS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am quite unused to writing, yet I want to say to the BOSTON AMERICAN tha: the working people, the people who live by their daily wage, fully understand the great service it has rendered to them in its unsparing fight against the trusts. It is the only newspaper in Boston that dared attack the shameless men and combinations of men who compel the poor people to pay such prices for the necessaries of life that would not be permitted, or rather could not take place, in any other country. And just as public sentiment there will soon be the finish of the man who would "sweeten" sugar for use in bakeries, restaurants and hotels, or "reprocess" preserving meats. We are told the price of beef is higher than it was, that no progress has been made in reducing the extortions of the trusts. But the facts are now proved and admitted.

Will not the AMERICAN run its probe into the flour trust? A loaf of bread weighs sixty pounds. A barrel of flour is 196 pounds. Much less than four bushels of wheat make a barrel of flour. In the old water-mill days the bran and the "millings" were allowed as the profit of the mill owner for the grinding. The "tailings" now go into the flour. The present price of wheat is 76 cents and the cost of the wheat in a barrel of flour is about $2.60. The price is $5 when the barrel reaches the home. This beats the beef, the ice, and almost equals the anthracite trust. This more than 100 per cent. profit, of course, is divided between the wholesaler and retailer. This needs the AMERICAN.

HE KNOWS WHEN A HOUSE IS SAFE

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Declares Germany Illustrates the Horrors of Wars Past and the Spirit of Wars to Come

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

HEIDELBERG, Germany.

IT is one thing to read of what destruction war has caused in the world, and it is another to stand in the midst of superb ruins of an edifice which was 600 years in construction and to know it was defaced and destroyed and robbed of all its magnificence in a siege of a few days.

All over Germany there are such ruins—all over Europe. Here at Heidelberg stands the most imposing evidence of the horror and wastefulness of war in the magnificent castle of Heidelberg.

It was the home of kings and rulers from 1200 to 1764.

Frederick of Bohemia built a superb tower and other additions in 1610 to welcome his bride, Elisabeth, the daughter of James I. of England. Kings and queens and historical personages of almost a thousand years ago have climbed its stairs, walked in its gardens, sat upon its terraces and enjoyed the glorious view from its great turrets.

In the basement museum are preserved the original statues, more than one hundred, which decorated arches and niches at the time of the siege.

There are sixteen full-size statues of the great Charlemagne, and all with broken arms or noses or other injuries received in war.

New duplicates appear in the niches above, placed there by the admirable society organized for the preservation of these old castles.

When restoration is added to preservation the original idea is carried out minutely as nearly as data permits.

Peace a Dream

DESPITE all that Germany has suffered from wars in past times she loves the paraphernalia of war, and he who dreams that disarmament and universal peace are near—dreams only.

The Old World is far from accepting that ideal.

I saw the Kaiser reviewing his troops at Mayence in August. There were 20,000 men, I think, and it was a great spectacular performance, rendered particularly theatrical by the peculiar step the German soldiers use in marching.

We talked with some young men at our hotel who were going to do service this Fall. They were enthusiastic over the idea, and felt proud to think they had passed the necessary physical examination.

One was a waiter at our table. He said he had twice failed in the requisite chest expansion, but now, just at the critical age was near its limit, he did succeed, much to his satisfaction.

He receives, after he enters the service of the Kaiser, his board, clothing and laundry and about five cents (in American money) a day. He will serve three years.

"You can hardly save anything on that," I said.

"Save! Why, I shall use my own money already saved to keep myself up and to get some enjoyment," he replied. "A soldier who has no money of his own to use while he is in service is very badly off indeed. I would not like to be in such a position. I have been laying up money ready for this time."

"Then what do you consider is the gain for you at the end of three years," I asked, "if you give your time and your savings to the country?"

"I have good exercise every day. I know how to be a soldier. Many very common, rough-looking, green fellows go into service and come out fine, strong men.

"If there is a war, we are ready. We know what to do. Oh, yes; it is fine to go into service as a soldier. I am very proud to go."

That is the spirit of the young men of the rank and file in Germany.

To the American point of view it seems three years lost out of the life of an ambitious young man, and a dear price paid for calisthenic exercises But aside from this view of it, it means ideals of war in the minds of men.

War Spirit Thrives

WHILE they exist, war will not end.

The supply will create the demand. Germany has known centuries of war—it will know many more steps in years to come.

There was enough powder burned in the mock battle which took place at Mayence to lay the foundation of a new college where the industrial trades and arts could be taught.

The whole machinery of war is repulsive to my mind, and all military displays, with clanking swords and rattling artillery and booming guns in mock battles, and marching columns of infantry and prancing columns of mounted men seem to belong to a receding age of barbarism.

Their picturesqueness is, to me, shadowed by the savage cruelty which they suggest when the purpose of the whole scene is analyzed.

The Kaiser was a more mature-looking man than his photographs and half-tones extant in America indicate.

I saw him ride by, a few feet distant, after the review was over, and, while the large audience was complimentary in its cheers it was not as demonstrative as I had anticipated.

But the military spirit is dominant in Europe, and the peace optimist may as well realize that his hope of universal disarmament must wait another century, or a half-century, before it reaches even the possible stage.

The somewhat phlegmatic temperament of the German people does not permit an audience to reach the hysterical state of enthusiasm we are accustomed to witness in America on small provocation.

Perhaps, however, it feels as deeply and as lastingly.

I do not think the President could pose through a course of people in America without a greater demonstration, but I doubt if the German Kaiser could so sink from public view and interest in a lifetime as our Presidents do in a few months after their term of office expires.
